'STATE OF EMERGENCY' FOR CONGO CAPITAL

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP)—Premier Cyrille Adoula clamped a state of emergency on the Congolese capital of Leopoldville Sunday night in an attempt to checkmate a general strike threat.

A form of martial law was imposed and special military courts will try offenders.

Leaders of The Congo's labor union federations had set midnight Tuesday night as the deadline for Adoula to accept their demands for a "government of public safety" or face a general strike.

Gov't Trusteeship Plan For Unions Goes Ahead

EIGHT BOXCARS

3 Injured In PGE Plunge

VANCOUVER (CP)—Three crewmen were injured early today when eight boxcars of a Pacific Great Eastern Railway freight train plunged over an embankment near Britannia Beach, about 15 miles north of here.

The boxcars crashed down a steep slope, stopping short of the choppy waters of Howe Sound. Six diesel-electric units hauling the northbound, 109-car freight also jumped the tracks, but remained upright.

Railway officials were conducting an investigation to determine the cause of the mishap. Conductor Joseph Pakulak of North Vancouver suffered neck injuries and at least temporary paralysis when he was hurled across the caboose by the impact.

The accident occurred about 1:20 a.m. near Mile 20, about three miles south of Britannia Beach, as heavy rains and high winds battered the Howe Sound area.

Railway officials at first said the train had hit a slide, but later said investigators at the scene had not determined the definite cause of the mishap. The train was carrying general merchandise to northern B.C., including equipment for the Peace River power project.

Officials said the track was badly damaged in the derailment, but full estimate of damage and how long it will take to repair it was not known.

CRITIC GOT NO ARGUMENT FROM HAL

OTTAWA (CP)—It wasn't all cheers and applause for Hal C. Banks as he met members of his Seafarers' International Union of Canada on Parliament Hill.

As he left The Hill briefly, one Ottawa citizen—separated from the SIU president by an iron fence—called out: "Banks, you're a... damned crook."

Mr. Banks chuckled and shot back: "I agree with you."

SIU Members March on Hill

OTTAWA (CP)—The march on Parliament by the Seafarers' International Union of Canada was ended at mid-afternoon today by order of Hal C. Banks.

But the instructions by the burly SIU president indicated that the walkout by union members—termed an illegal strike by the government—will continue for Tuesday at least.

Speaking to SIU lieutenants in front of the Parliament Buildings about three hours after the demonstration began, Mr. Banks said the union members were not to return to their ships.

"Report to the closest hall. Then we'll hold a meeting and decide what we're going to do."

Mr. Banks told a reporter that the meetings in the SIU's union halls would be held tonight and Tuesday.

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson said today the government's trusteeship legislation over five maritime unions will be proclaimed without delay.

He made the statement to reporters in a corridor of the East Block of the Parliament Buildings while outside on Parliament Hill hundreds of members of the Seafarers' International Union (Ind.), carrying banners, protested in orderly fashion against the legislation.

Scuttling of the private trusteeship plan was revealed Sunday by Donald MacDonald, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Labor Congress.

Mr. MacDonald said there is no alternative to public trusteeship.

"We had been hopeful that a public trusteeship could have been avoided and reason would have prevailed," he told a reporter.

He blamed the leaders of the SIU in Canada and the United States for scuttling the private talks.

Mr. MacDonald said the CLC will co-operate with the government even though it opposes trusteeship in principle.

Union Leader Hal C. Banks, who would be removed from office under the legislation, told his cheering followers from the steps in front of the Parliament Buildings that he wants the seamen to impress on MPs their demands for justice.

The government had ordered Banks to end the "illegal" walk-out from ships.

OTTAWA (CP)—Harold

Winch, New Democratic Party member for Vancouver East, gave this report today of his interview with the SIU delegation carrying a banner from his riding.

He said he waited about half an hour on the steps in front of the Parliament Buildings until he spotted the Vancouver East banner among the milling crowd on the parliamentary lawns.

"I then made my way straight through the throng and found a delegation of two men," he said.

"I asked the first, do you live in Vancouver East? He said no. I asked the second, do you live in Vancouver East? He didn't either."

Mr. Winch then asked whether they could speak English. He said he then learned they were French-speaking people from Quebec.

OTTAWA (CP)—In a face-to-face meeting today New Democratic Leader T. C. Douglas told angry members of the Seafarers' International Union, (Ind.), that their union "long ago ceased to be a democratically-run union."

One SIU member shouted at him that members of the union hadn't had any say in the government move to impose a trusteeship on the SIU and other maritime unions.

"We haven't been allowed a voice," he said.

"You sure haven't—not in your union," Mr. Douglas shot back.

Mr. Douglas said the SIU members had "dodged" the fact that the other four unions to be put under trusteeship had accepted it.

GUERRILLA WAR

Viet Nam Reds Score Big Win

(Times News Services) SAIGON, South Viet Nam — Government forces licked their wounds today after suffering a setback in a major weekend airborne operation against Communist Viet Cong guerrillas.

Government casualties were listed at 40 dead and 80 wounded including 13 American military advisers wounded.

The government estimated enemy casualties at 30 dead. No prisoners were taken and only four Viet Cong bodies were found.

The battle, termed by U.S. advisers "the bloodiest nose" given President Ngo Dinh Diem's forces since a similar defeat Jan. 2, took place in a remote area of rice paddies and palm groves near Loc Ninh, 140 miles southeast of Saigon.

A considerable distance from helicopter bases and out of reach of government artillery, the sector has long been infiltrated by guerrillas.

FIRE ON TROOPS
Entrenched in fortified positions, Viet Cong heavy machine guns cut up two waves of South Vietnamese troops carried in by U.S. helicopters.

Another government battalion brought in on foot also failed to dislodge the Viet Cong's well-trained and well-equipped Phu Loi battalion. A third helicopter force was halted too.

CHANGES 'GROTESQUE' OR 'SENSIBLE'?

Tory 'Progressives' Refuse To Join Home's New Cabinet

LONDON (CP)—The Earl of Home, Britain's new prime minister, today faced an urgent repair job on the Conservative party's election machinery, disrupted by defections at the top.

Lord Home's quickly-constructed cabinet—largely a reshuffle of Harold Macmillan's—won general approval from Conservative newspapers and derision from pro-Labor commentators.

But editorial writers of both sides suggested the government must be handicapped by the refusal of "progressives" Iain Macleod and Enoch Powell, health minister under Macmillan, to serve under Home. Macleod, one of the Tory progressives who backed Richard A. Butler in last week's struggle for the premiership, was expected to resign as joint chairman of the Conservative party. Informed sources said his co-chairman, financier Lord Poole, would resign with him. Poole had backed Science Minister Lord Hailsham to succeed Macmillan, who had decided to resign as premier after undergoing surgery for a prostate-gland condition.

One Man to Replace Joint Chairmen

Macleod and Poole were a formidable team in planning Conservative platform and finances for the national elections next year. Their joint chairmanship probably will be turned into a one-man post and given to John Hare, 52, a former labor minister who took the sinecure post of chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster in the new cabinet.

Editorial reaction to Home's cabinet ranged from "a good start" in the Conservative Daily Sketch to "grotesque" in the pro-Labor Daily Mirror.

The Conservative Daily Telegraph says: "The changes have been as sensible as the absence of Mr. Macleod and Mr. Powell allowed them to be."

The Liberal Manchester Guardian calls the changes "sensible enough."

The Independent Times says the speed with which the cabinet was produced was a good token of the support for Home but adds: "Nevertheless the time left for him to establish himself is perilously short... deep wounds and suspicions have been left behind."

Most political commentators believe Macleod, by refusing office after winning an ovation at the recent Conservative party conference in Blackpool, staked an unspoken claim to the leadership if Home should falter.

Home's major innovation was to create a secretary for industry, trade and regional development and hand it to his former deputy foreign minister, Edward Heath, 47.

This apparently was partly intended to counter Home's admitted inexperience in economic affairs. It was a counter, too, to the Labor party's intention to appoint an economic high command if it wins power.

Three Challengers Stay With Him

The new prime minister succeeded in getting his three major challengers for the party leadership to stick with him.

Butler, his chief rival and former deputy prime minister, took Home's old job of foreign secretary. Lord Hailsham continues as science minister. The Chancellor of the Exchequer, Reginald Maudling stays in his old post.

To replace Macleod as floor leader in the House of Commons, Home called on Selwyn Lloyd and made him lord privy seal, giving him a seat in the cabinet. Lloyd, foreign secretary for five years under Sir Anthony Eden (now Lord Avon) and Macmillan, was fired as chancellor of the exchequer in July, 1962, because his wage-freeze policy had been unpopular.

Other cabinet changes were minor.

Home, 60-year-old Scottish aristocrat whose estates cover more than 80,000 acres, will face the first test of his personal popularity next month.

Still a member of the House of Lords, he announced he would shed his title and run for the Commons at a special by-election in the Scottish constituency of Kinross and West Perth.

His Labor party opponents will be a history teacher, Andrew Forrester, 25.

In the 1959 general election Kinross gave the Conservative candidate, the late Gilmour Leburn, 16,256 votes to 4,008 for the Labor man.

U.S. Pays the Shot But Can't Fly Flag
JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—Indonesia, for an undisclosed reason, refused to let an American flag fly at the dedication today of a new highway financed with an $8,000,000 U.S. loan.

An American embassy official said it was originally planned to place a U.S. flag next to an Indonesian flag where President Sukarno cut a ribbon opening the four-lane highway on the outskirts of Jakarta.

"We were told this morning that there was an order from the presidential palace not to permit any display of American flags," the official said.

However, the Indonesians allowed a two-foot red, white and blue emblem of the U.S. Agency for International Development, which supplied the loan, to be placed next to the ceremonial ribbon.

PRODUCTION STOPPED AT KILLER DAM PLANT

ROME (AP)—The ministry of public works has ruled that the Valont Dam, scene of the Oct. 9 North Italian flood disaster that claimed about 3,000 lives, will not be put back into service for the production of hydro-electric power. The ministry says its decision assures that any future landslides from Mount Tocco into the man-made reservoir will not imperil villages which are to be rebuilt on the site of flood-destroyed communities below the dam.

Selassie Deep in Border Conflict

MARRAKECH, Morocco (AP)— Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia delayed his departure from Morocco today to continue efforts to mediate the Moroccan-Algerian border conflict.

The emperor was expected to hold further talks with Moroccan officials and possibly to arrange a meeting between Algerian Foreign Minister Abdelaziz Bouteflika and Moroccan Foreign Minister Ahmed Balafout.

Haile Selassie went to Rabat Sunday after an official visit to King Hassan II in Marrakech, the country's winter capital. Bouteflika joined him in Rabat Sunday night and they had been scheduled to fly to Paris today and then to Algiers. Balafout also is in Rabat.

Cabinet ministers said the Moroccan government is ready to negotiate the bitter dispute but the Algerians must make the first move.

At United Nations headquarters in New York, emissaries from both governments told Secretary-General U Thant there was no chance of a cease-fire under present conditions. Each demanded that the other's force withdraw from the disputed border area. They said they had not decided whether to accept Thant's offer to mediate the conflict.

The Algerians have refused to discuss Moroccan demands for a large portion of the Sahara, which Morocco claims belongs to it historically and ethnically.

MASS AROUND BORDER

Troops were massed around a half-dozen frontier points after a series of clashes in which there have been several score victims. Algerian sources reported sporadic fighting in the Hassi Beldja and Tinjoub area in the ill-defined frontier zone.

Neither country — each with about the same population of 11,000,000 to 12,000,000 — has enough men to wage a full-scale war along the 700-mile frontier.

Late Sunday, the attention of both countries centred on Figui, an oasis in Morocco where the defined segment of the frontier ends. Troops were massed on both sides and the Moroccan cans ordered a blackout in the area.

Moroccan strategists believe the 35,000-man royal army, bolstered by 20,000 auxiliaries in the desert, the stronger force in the south. But they as many or more French jets apparent, Algerian superiority plus other planes.

Tidal Wave Alert Proves a Fizzle

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—

For the second weekend in a row, an earthquake near Japan put the Hawaiian Islands and the California coast on a tidal wave alert.

And, for the second weekend in a row, the threatened tidal wave amounted to little more than a ripple in the Pacific.

The earthquake struck north of Japan Saturday night. Civil defence officials in Hawaii sounded the alert on all islands and ordered the evacuation of all beachfront areas.

The entire population of Hilo, a city of about 21,000 persons on the Island of Hawaii, was ordered to high ground and all bars and night clubs in Waikiki were forced to close down for the second Saturday night in a row.

Many ships berthed at ports in the islands, including the passenger liner President Wilson, sought the safety of the high seas.

But the tidal wave measured just one foot as it passed Midway Island and was even lower when recorded at Hawaii.

In California, state disaster headquarters in Sacramento sounded an alert for local civil defence agencies. A similar warning a week earlier had sent thousands of coastal residents inland.

Only a few hundred persons left their homes this time and there was no indication of whether the wave ever reached the California coast.

Archdeacon Appointed

Archdeacon A. E. Hendy has been appointed rector of St. Richard's Church at Gordon Head.

He replaces Rev. William Hills, who retired recently because of ill-health and is now at Qualicum.

The appointment came after members of the Diocesan Servers' Guild made a unanimous choice at their 14th annual conference at Christ Church Cathedral during the weekend.

About 100 servers from Vancouver Island areas attended the conference.

They were told by Victoria MLA Waldo Skillings—himself father of five servers—that they should set their horizons high but base them all on the faith they had secured when they were young.

The new chaplain installed the following servers at the Sunday service in Christ Cathedral.

Jim Robertson, Christ Church, diocesan warden for the 14th term; James Howell, Christ Church, secretary-treasurer; Barney Spaven, Christ Church, treasurer; Tom Beesley, Christ Church, and Len Howland, St. Luke's, executive members.

Mr. Douglas said there was plenty of evidence of "goon squad" violence in the report of Mr. Justice T. G. Norris who investigated labor violence on the Great Lakes.

ROUND-A-BOUT

By DOUGLAS HILLSIDE

A handy short title for University of Victoria is as far away as ever, unless we keep calling it Vic College, or The Place.

Meanwhile, we notice few in their endeavors to arrive at a catchy name have plumbed historic depths. Chancellor Judge Joseph E. Clearthue—practically a founder—has been ignored.

What could be more appropriate than Clear-U? Or failing that, Joe's College. Or maybe we should forget the whole thing.

Alan Maclean, for 15 years proprietor of famed Painter's Lodge at Campbell River, is a new Victoria resident. Mr. Maclean sold out his interest in the lodge this year and moved to town last month. He's in sort of semi-retirement but taking engagements as a management consultant. It was appropriate that, this being National Newspaper Week, he mentioned that he started out in life as a Times carrier some 45 years ago.

You may recall the story about the holdup man who tried to make off with the night's receipts at the Imperial Inn some three weeks ago.

A fascinating aspect of the investigation has turned up.

One of the guests in the motel at the time was J. F. Gregory—now Victoria police chief.

A guest on a television interview program the other night was Howie Bateman, the Vancouver coffee house entrepreneur who partly backed last Thursday evening's Hootenanny here.

His reaction to Victoria hootenannies: "never again." About 900 people trickled into the Esquimalt Sports Centre for the event. Break-even point was 2,000.

Tribute to Mrs. W. W. McGill, Victoria director of the B.C. Save the Children Fund, was paid in Metropolitan United Church Sunday by Gerald Walkey.

"She's the greatest Christian witness I know," said Mr. Walkey in reference to Mrs. McGill's efforts for children at home and abroad—her Halloween campaign in aid of the Save the Children Fund and the Sunday school rallies she organizes every year in Beacon Hill Park.

In Victoria recently, 20-year-old British student Michael Lacey advertised in The Times for a hitch-hike across Canada. He received a number of offers and now writes from England to tell us how he got back:

"The man who drove me across Canada was going to visit a couple of friends in the penitentiary who are doing a stretch for breaking and entering. His licence was borrowed from a friend, as the police had taken his, and he was living with a married woman.

"Nevertheless, although he wasn't exactly a candidate for the ministry, he was quite a decent chap and we had some pleasant times."

From Toronto, Michael returned by charter plane to Birmingham, where he is now attending university.

After years of studying the works of Charles Dickens, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wakefield Maunsell, 1771 Newton, are going to live in Dickens' English haunts.

Mr. Maunsell, who was born at Edmonton, Alta., is president of the Victoria branch, Dickens Fellowship. Mrs. Maunsell, a native of Leicester, England, has headed the Victoria poetry group, Canadian Authors' Association, for 18 years.

"We plan to live near London, if possible in the county of Kent, which was the setting for so many Dickens novels," Mrs. Maunsell said.

Did two German sailors give up their attempt to meet Victoria girls after they met the charmers of Hawaii?

Earlier in the year loneliness on the high seas was unbearable and the sailors dropped a note overboard in a bottle asking for two young girls to write.

Just who they intended to reach is not known—the letter was in broken English and a Dutch coin was included for postage.

The bottle was retrieved off Clover Point by Mrs. C. W. Ward, 1476 Thurlow.

The letter was written six days before the boys were due to dock in Hawaii—they haven't been heard from since. Could be they aren't lonely any more.

Anyone wishing to find out should write to Manfred Zimmer, Kaiserslautern, St. Josefstr. 9, Germany, or Jürgen Siepa, Hamburg-Wilhelmsburg, Rotenhauser str. 76, Germany.

BANKS IN REVIEW

Although his men began arriving for their demonstration at about 9 a.m., Banks himself did not put in an appearance until shortly before noon.

He arrived in his flashy white Cadillac convertible.

At first, he seemed confused about what procedure to follow in organizing the demonstration. His followers were simply milling about, to no apparent purpose.

BANNERS FLOWN

"Hey, you guys," he yelled to a group of seamen, "help some of these trucks with those signs."

The placards and banners were then broken out; they bore the names of federal constituencies, with the names of the elected MPs. Groups of men were to assemble beneath each of these placards, elect one representative, who would go into the parliament buildings and seek an interview with his designated MP.

Shortly after his arrival, Banks made his way to the top of the broad stairs below the Peace Tower.

Holding his hands up, palms out towards the crowd below him, Banks said:

"Let's not move any further this way. This is not a riot. Right there. (Pause.)

"You look good. (Smile.) Real good."

A roar and three cheers for Banks went up.

AVOID VIOLENCE

Then, quiet once more falling over sun-drenched Parliament Hill, Banks gave the men their instructions, warning them to co-operate with the RCMP and avoid violence.

The purpose of the visit, he declared, was to make MPs aware of the "injustice" the government was allegedly imposing on the seamen through the trusteeship.

Making another tour through the crowd, Banks was followed at close quarters by a group of newsmen.

Would Banks and his men be staying more than one day? "I like Ottawa," said Banks.

"I might stick around a week. Banks headed down Wellington Street, on which Parliament Hill faces. He was going to a spot a block away where a sandwich-filled truck was waiting to feed the men. On the way, a man on the other side of the iron fence of Parliament Hill shouted at Banks:

"You're a goddamn crook, Banks," Banks laughed, and without breaking stride, said: "I agree with you."

SAMPLED SANDWICH

Finding the sandwich truck, Banks sampled a sandwich (ham), declared it to be "good," and told the truck crew to be ready for the call to deliver the sandwiches to the hill. The RCMP had given permission for the feeding, he said.

When Banks returned to "the hill," he resumed his reviewing.

Only a handful of MPs showed themselves outside. Vancouver East MP Harold Winch (NDP) presented himself to two men carrying a banner with the name of his riding on it. When he spoke to them, he discovered they were from Montreal.

A Montreal Liberal MP, John Turner, parliamentary secretary to Northern Affairs Minister Arthur Laing, got himself involved in a howling contest with a number of MPs members on the steps below the Peace Tower.

LITTLE IMPRESSION

At one point in the 20-minute exchange, Turner was barely able to move, so great was the crush of hostile bodies against him. After failing to make much impression with the men by his arguments in favor of the trusteeship, Turner saw a demonstrator start punching a placard behind him. Turner finally gave up.

Meanwhile, reporters following Banks thought they might witness a significant development as Banks headed for the Parliament Buildings. He entered the Buildings, however, only to visit a washroom, and he displayed delight at the ire shown by newsmen.

Viet Nam Reds Score Big Win

(Times News Services) SAIGON, South Viet Nam—Government forces licked their wounds today after suffering a setback in a major weekend airborne operation against Communist Viet Cong guerrillas.

Government casualties were listed at 40 dead and 80 wounded including 13 American military advisers wounded.

The government estimated enemy casualties at 30 dead. No prisoners were taken and only four Viet Cong bodies were found.

The battle, termed by U.S. advisers "the bloodiest nose" given President Ngo Dinh Diem's forces since a similar defeat Jan. 2, took place in a remote area of rice paddies and palm groves near Loc Ninh, 140 miles southeast of Saigon.

A considerable distance from helicopter bases and out of reach of government artillery, the sector has long been infiltrated by guerrillas.

Entrenched in fortified positions, Viet Cong heavy machine-guns cut up two waves of South Vietnamese troops carried in by U.S. helicopters.

Another government battalion brought in on foot also failed to dislodge the Viet Cong's well-trained and well-equipped Phu Loi battalion. A third helicopter force was halted too.

CHANGES 'GROTESQUE' OR 'SENSIBLE'?

Tory 'Progressives' Refuse To Join Home's New Cabinet

LONDON (CP)—The Earl of Home, Britain's new prime minister, today faced an urgent repair job on the Conservative party's election machinery, disrupted by defections at the top.

Lord Home's quickly-constructed cabinet—largely a reshuffle of Harold Macmillan's—won general approval from Conservative newspapers and derision from pro-Labor commentators.

But editorial writers of both sides suggested the government must be handicapped by the refusal of "progressives" Iain Macleod and Enoch Powell, health minister under Macmillan, to serve under Home.

Macleod, one of the Tory pro-

gressives who backed Richard A. Butler in last week's struggle for the premiership, was expected to resign as joint chairman of the Conservative party.

Informed sources said his co-chairman, financier Lord Poole, would resign with him. Poole had backed Science Minister Lord Hailsham to succeed Macmillan, who had decided to resign as premier after undergoing surgery for a prostate-gland condition.

One Man to Replace Joint Chairmen

Macleod and Poole were a formidable team in planning Conservative platform and finances for the national elections next year. Their joint chairmanship probably will be turned into a one-man post and given to John Hare, 52, a former labor minister who took the sinecure post of chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster in the new cabinet.

Editorial reaction to Home's cabinet ranged from "a good start" in the Conservative Daily Sketch to "grotesque" in the pro-Labor Daily Mirror.

The Conservative Daily Telegraph says: "The changes have been as sensible as the absence of Mr. Macleod and Mr. Powell allowed them to be."

The Liberal Manchester Guardian calls the changes "sensible enough."

The Independent Times says the speed with which the cabinet was produced was a good token of the support for Home but adds: "Nevertheless the time left for him to establish himself is perilously short... deep wounds and suspicions have been left behind."

Most political commentators believe Macleod, by refusing office after winning an ovation at the recent Conservative party conference in Blackpool, staked an unspoken claim to the leadership if Home should falter. Home's major innovation was to create a secretary for industry, trade and regional development and hand it to his former deputy foreign minister, Edward Heath, 47.

This apparently was partly intended to counter Home's admitted inexperience in economic affairs. It was a counter, too, to the Labor party's intention to appoint an economic high command if it wins power.

Three Challengers Stay With Him

The new prime minister succeeded in getting his three major challengers for the party leadership to stick with him.

Butler, his chief rival and former deputy prime minister, took Home's old job of foreign secretary. Lord Hailsham continues as science minister. The Chancellor of the Exchequer, Reginald Maudling stays in his old post.

To replace Macleod as floor leader in the House of Commons, Home called on Selwyn Lloyd and made him lord privy seal, giving him a seat in the cabinet. Lloyd, foreign secretary for five years under Sir Anthony Eden (now Lord Avon) and Macmillan, was fired as chancellor of the exchequer in July, 1962, because his wage-freeze policy had been unpopular.

Other cabinet changes were minor.

Home, 60-year-old Scottish aristocrat whose estates cover more than 80,000 acres, will face the first test of his personal popularity next month.

Still a member of the House of Lords, he announced he would shed his title and run for the Commons at a special by-election in the Scottish constituency of Kinross and West Perth.

His Labor party opponents will be a history teacher, Andrew Forrester, 25.

TROUBLE OVER AFRICAN CHIEF

Britain's A-G on Carpet

LONDON (Reuters)—Attorney-General Sir John Hobson, appeared in secret before Britain's top law society today on charges of unprofessional conduct arising from the deportation of an African chief.

The hearing, making legal history, was expected to last until Tuesday when a verdict will be announced.

The charges arise out of the deportation last May of Nigerian Chief Anthony Enahoro to face charges of plotting to overthrow the Nigerian government.

This is the first time an attorney-general has faced such charges.

If Hobson is found guilty by his legal "peers" he could face "sentences" ranging from a reprimand to a period of suspension or disbarment.

The Inner Temple is one of London's four Inns of court, societies having the exclusive right of admitting lawyers to practise in the high courts.

One lawyer at the hearing was Reginald Paget, the Labor member of Parliament who reported Hobson to the Inner Temple following Enahoro's deportation.

The chief was subsequently sentenced to 15 years imprisonment.

Paget's first complaint was that during application by Enahoro for an anti-deportation writ April 25 before the divisional court, and later the House of Lords appeals committee, Hobson presented an affidavit sworn by Home Secretary Henry Brooke, which Paget said he knew to be inaccurate and misleading.

Paget's second complaint was that on further application by Enahoro for a writ in May, Hobson failed to disclose that he rimand to a period of suspension or disbarment.

U.S. Pays the Shot But Can't Fly Flag

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—Indonesia, for an undisclosed reason, refused to let an American flag fly at the dedication today of a new highway financed with an $8,000,000 U.S. loan.

An American embassy official said it was originally planned to place a U.S. flag next to an Indonesian flag where President Sukarno cut a ribbon opening the four-lane highway on the outskirts of Jakarta.

"We were told this morning that there was an order from the presidential palace not to permit any display of American flags," the official said.

However, the Indonesians allowed a two-foot red, white and blue emblem of the U.S. Agency for International Development, which supplied the loan, to be placed next to the ceremonial ribbon.

ROME (AP)—The ministry of public works has ruled that the Valont Dam, scene of the Oct. 9 North Italian flood disaster that claimed about 3,000 lives, will not be put back into service for the production of hydro-electric power. The ministry says its decision assures that any future landslides from Mount Toc into the man-made reservoir will not imperil villages which are to be rebuilt on the site of flood-destroyed communities below the dam.

Remove the Threat

CONSTRUCTION WORK IS proceeding at a good pace on the Gordon Head campus of the University of Victoria and a splendid group of buildings is being created at the head of what will eventually be the main mall. Greater Victorians may be justly proud of the educational institution which is rising day by day.

There can be less satisfaction, however, with conditions in the neighborhood of the university. There is no inter-municipal plan for controlling and directing development of the area surrounding the campus, no over-all program to preserve and improve the natural environment of what will become a major asset to the Island. And of more immediate concern, there is a serious impairment inherent in the strip of land bordering Cedar Hill Cross Road and Gordon Head, to the south and west of the campus.

A 400-foot strip of land along these two thoroughfares was set aside in the original campus purchase at the insistence of the municipality of Oak Bay, the intention being that the properties would be zoned for high-rise apartments and the municipality would be recompensed through the resulting high taxes for its loss to the campus of potential subdivision lands. The apartments on the strip would become the property of the university after 50 years and presumably be a source of revenue from rentals.

At the time of the purchase of the Hudson's Bay lands this seemed the only possible compromise. The university needed the campus area for its imminent expansion. But several facts now make it clear that Oak Bay's insistence on this revenue source has serious disadvantages.

A half-mile row of high-rise buildings along the southern edge of the campus will seriously impair the environment of the institution. A similar threat on the east boundary was fought off by the aroused taxpayers of the area. Such buildings would dominate the campus and contend with the central university which the university development architects seek to create.

The apartments would also cut the campus off from access to the roads to south and west, to the detriment of university buildings eventually to be built in those directions. And, as demonstrated recently, the physical loss of the large strip from the campus block will be seriously felt in years to come. Now is the time to save this land for the university, whose growth even today is exceeding all expectations.

The federal government's recent announcement that a $1,600,000 institute of oceanography will be constructed on the campus brought the point home. While there is land available at present for this important addition to the university complex, what of the future? It is not realistic to think that this will be the last such opportunity for the university to add valuable scientific and other adjuncts to its facilities, but the day may not be far distant when the reply to such an offer would have to be: sorry, no room.

Surely our university is important enough, vital enough to the future of this community, that it should not have strips whittled from its territory, that it shouldn't be begrudged use of the full block of land from Haro Road on the east to Gordon Head on the west, from Sinclair on the north to Cedar Hill Cross Road on the south.

Let us not be niggardly, let us not be parochial, let us not be shortsighted in regard to this whole venture. Some mutually agreeable arrangement should be worked out with Oak Bay and Saanich whereby all threat of the intrusion of foreign construction on the university precinct would be permanently removed.

who need assistance, material and intangible. No one is legally required to do his bit to strengthen our youth in heart and mind and body so that a new generation grows up to be the kind of citizens who bring respect to their city.

But if this type of help is denied, the community in which we live ceases to be a community worthy of pride—ceases, perhaps, to be the kind of community in which decent people want to live.

And that help cannot be given unless the money needed to supplement the service of volunteer workers, and the professional staffs they require, is forthcoming.

It is late in the current campaign for our people to ask themselves if they have done enough to assist those in need, but it is not too late.

If they face their consciences and hope to avoid turning away in shame, they must ask the question, give the obvious response and translate it into practical form. That form is even more generous support from many who have already given and a worthwhile gift from those who are able but who have yet to make their contributions.

Forest Bread and Butter

PAUSE FOR A MOMENT AND try to imagine what British Columbia would be like if it had no great stands of merchantable timber—make believe that the forest cover of the province had economic value only as scenery.

Right away there would be 73,000 fewer jobs. Every man, woman and child in the province would be poorer by the equivalent of about $500 in annual purchasing power. Secondary industry, largely dependent on supplying the forest products industry, would wither away and the people would be almost wholly dependent on mining, fishing and agriculture.

Without its forest industry, in other words, British Columbia would be one of the "have-not" provinces of Canada with perhaps half its present population and little future.

These facts are brought out to show that while this week, National Forest Products Week, is marked all across Canada, it is of particular importance to British Columbians to consider again the value to them personally of what is unquestionably the province's "bread and butter" industry.

It is an economic blessing that this province has such great stands of softwood trees, over one-third of all the merchantable timber in Canada. It is also a blessing that the largest part of the harvest of the forest is manufactured and converted into lumber, plywood, newsprint, pulp, fine paper and scores of other items right here in the province.

But this is a blessing that must not be taken for granted. The province's wood products are exported to more than 40 countries of the world and it is on these exports—for the domestic market consumes relatively little—that the well-being of the industry depends.

From time to time these exports are threatened by tariffs and quotas and, even more important, from competition by other producing countries which are ready to take advantage of every technological, production cost and transportation factor available.

British Columbia's forest industry has so far proved efficient enough and aggressive enough to fend off the threats to its markets abroad. Its continued ability to do so depends to a considerable extent on the willingness of the general public to maintain a high degree of interest in the problems of the industry, not just during National Forest Products Week but throughout the whole year.

Open to Argument

By MAURICE WESTERN from Ottawa

MR. DIEFFENBAKER'S announcement in Edmonton that the question of the Conservative leadership will be submitted to the national convention in January has aroused much interest here in the national capital and in eastern Canada generally.

Two conclusions are being drawn from it by political observers. The first is that dissatisfaction within the Conservative party is too strong to be ignored. The second is that Mr. Diefenbaker has appreciated the forces gathering against him and concluded that they cannot, within a three-month period, achieve sufficient strength or unity to mount a successful challenge to his leadership.

Conservative newspapers which abandoned the Diefenbaker cause at the last election have welcomed the announcement. The Globe and Mail, for example, has argued that the April defeat was not so much a repudiation of conservatism as of Mr. Diefenbaker personally.

Time to Talk Principles

It draws a stark contrast between the failure of the federal Conservatives and the recent successes of their provincial counterparts. The time has come, according to the Toronto newspaper, for a nationwide discussion of Conservative principles.

No sixth sense is required to discern the restlessness within the Conservative party. Some of it has found its way on to the public record. But the various attempts, including that of The Globe and Mail, to rally the dissidents would be more impressive if there was as yet any figure opposed to Mr. Diefenbaker about whom the dissidents could rally.

Two years ago the Conservative group in Parliament seemed cluttered with potential successors. But those with the most persuasive claims, Mr. Hees and Mr. Fulton, have disappeared from the federal scene. Mr. Harkness has been almost isolated and is not considered a serious contender. Mr. Balcer is little known outside Quebec. Mr. Nowlan, though popular, has health problems and has, in any case, shown no disposition to challenge a chief who remains very much in the field.

Provincial Premiers

In this situation speculation has centred on three successful provincial premiers. As the rebels are strongest in central Canada, Mr. Robarts is in all probability the chief hope of those who desire a change in the federal leadership. It cannot be said that the Ontario premier has as yet given any public sign of higher aspirations but this does not necessarily mean that he would be unresponsive to a clear call.

There are, however, a number of interesting facts of which Ottawa Conservatives seem well aware. They may be simply summarized.

The record indicates, first, that many federal politicians—Mr. T. C. Douglas, Mr. Hepburn and Mr. Lesage are good examples—have left Ottawa to become provincial premiers.

There are many more examples of provincial premiers who have gone on to play notable roles in federal cabinets. The careers of Mr. Fielding and Mr. Garson, Mr. A. L. Sifton, Mr. Charles Stewart, Mr. Dunning, Mr. Gardiner, Mr. Rhodes and Mr. Angus L. Macdonald are cases in point.

But the record also shows that in nearly 100 years only two former premiers have become prime ministers and in each case by inheritance. Both came from Nova Scotia. Sir John Thompson died after an extremely brief tenure. Sir Charles Tupper was defeated at the ensuing elections.

Advanced to Fail

The explanation is not that former premiers have been reluctant to seek the mantle. Several, among them Mr. Fielding and Mr. Gardiner, failed at party conventions. Others succeeded to national leadership but failed in their appeals to the electorate.

The Conservatives have good reason to remember this record. Prior to Mr. Diefenbaker's accession, they had tried repeatedly to defeat the Liberals under the leadership of former successful provincial premiers. Mr. Bracken failed and so did Mr. Drew.

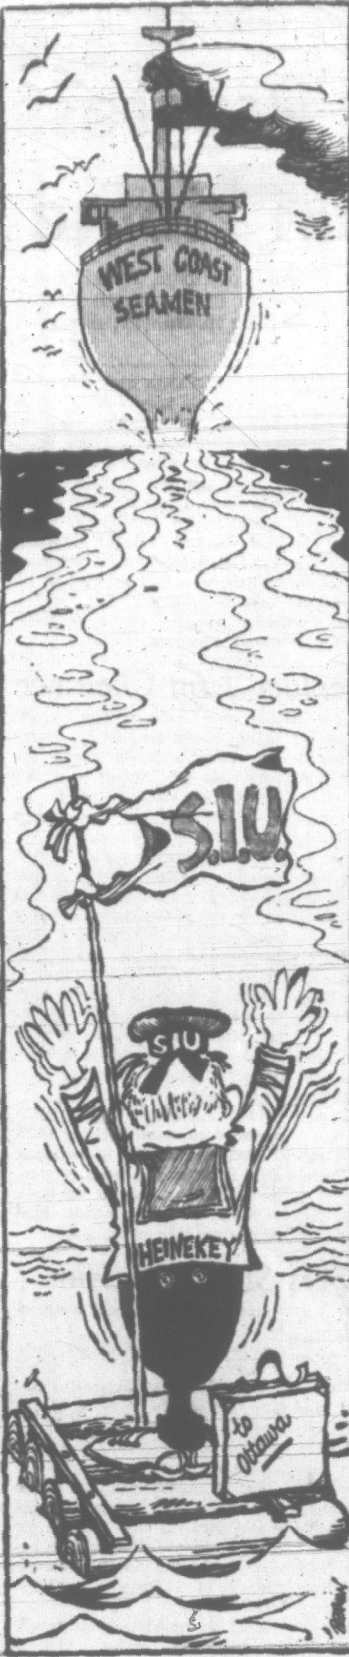

Times change and precedents can be broken. But a record such as this, while it endures, constitutes a deterrent of some weight for a political party seeking the sort of leadership which might mean a return to power.

Mr. Diefenbaker has at least two other advantages. He has taken the initiative and the battle will have to be fought more or less on his terms. Any challenger who appears in present circumstances is bound to meet the reproach that he is dividing the party and thus jeopardizing its chances in the next confrontation with the Liberals at the polls.

Can Claim Credit

The second advantage is that Mr. Diefenbaker has been the leader during recent months of fierce controversy in the minority Parliament. It may be that the Conservatives exaggerate Liberal losses resulting from ministerial mistakes and minimize the gains accruing to the Liberals from the Government's successes. But if the Conservatives have improved their position and political parties are naturally inclined to take a rosy view of their own prospects, Mr. Diefenbaker as the continuing leader is in a position to claim credit for that improvement.

It is possible that unexpected developments between now and January will alter the outlook. As matters stand, however, there is a general expectation in Ottawa that Mr. Diefenbaker will survive the convention. There seems to be more interest at the moment in a related question: how much opposition to the present leadership will be forced into the open by his challenge from Edmonton?

FROM TOKYO

By JOSEPH ALSOP

New Trade With Red China

IN FUTURE, it will be well for Washington to remember that Communist China exercises a double pull on prosperous, bustling, capitalist Japan. On the one hand, the Japanese feel that they did the "Chinese people" an injury in the last war; and despite Chiang Kai-shek, they consider that the Chinese people are to be found on the mainland. On the other hand, the Japanese vividly remember the era when China and Manchuria cheaply provided a large part of the basic raw materials needed by Japan's industry.

Alsop

This double pull exerted by Communist China also has a double effect. On the one hand, the Japanese who are reasonably realistic about Communist China—Foreign Minister Ohira is a conspicuous example—are considerable rarer than hen's teeth. Sentimentality and the want of good information generally combine to produce remarkably mushy estimates of the Peking regime and its future.

Attractive to Japan

On the other hand, the first two factors noted also combine with the last-noted, to make trade with Communist China seem both attractive and virtuous in the eyes of the Japanese.

This is very important indeed at the present juncture, when Peking has started a major drive to replace its former Communist-bloc industrial suppliers with new trading partners outside the Communist part of the world.

It cannot be too often emphasized that this substitution is a life and death matter for Peking. The causes of the Chinese Communist purchase of British Viscount aircraft are directly in point here.

In brief, the Chinese internal air transport system had been almost exclusively equipped with Russian Ilyushins. But since 1959 the Russians have not merely refused to deliver any more Ilyushins to China; they have also withheld deliveries of the spare parts to keep the existing Ilyushins operational.

Hence most of them are beginning to be grounded, and the British Viscounts are desperately needed. Without them, in fact, Communist China would soon have no domestic air transport.

This Is the Model

This is the model, as it were, of the present situation of the entire Communist Chinese industrial plant and, it must be added, of all the units of the armed forces using more advanced weapons. Hence Peking has eagerly invited visits by "trade delegations." Britain, France, West Germany, Japan, and others have all scented profits and responded.

Two factors will determine the outcome. The first factor is whether any major non-Communist industrial power sets the example of extending long-term credit to China. This example may be set by the French, who may also set the further example of selling arms to Peking.

In the present phase of French policy-making, anything is possible.

If the French set this kind of example, the Japanese will be both impressed and influenced—to put the matter very mildly indeed. But even if we leave out this still speculative possibility or probability, we have still to deal with the second factor, which mainly concerns Japan.

Since the commercial export of human beings is now forbidden, trade with Communist China has few attractions for most of the really developed nations—unless, like Gen. de Gaulle, they see this trade as another good opportunity for sticking a loving thumb into President Kennedy's eye. But this is not true of Japan.

Raw Materials

China's shortage of goods that other non-Communist industrial nations are likely to want to buy can be judged from the fact that current Chinese trade plans seem to be keyed to increased exports of cheap textiles and third quality canned meat—not exactly goldmine-style earners. But to Japan, China can also supply with profit the same raw materials as in the old days, such as soybeans, coal, and iron ore.

The recently made "private" trade agreement will probably increase Sino-Japanese trade from an estimated two-way exchange of about $120 million this year to $160 million two ways next year. Additional soybean purchases, which will hurt American producers, are a considerable factor in the increase of Japanese purchases from China—to around $75 million for 1964.

Heavy Investment

But in order to resume trade on a really big scale, the Japanese must invest heavily at long terms, in order to re-equip the Chinese coal and iron industries, both for larger production and for production of coal and iron ore of much better quality. Only thus can the pre-war trade pattern be restored.

At present, the Japanese leaders are strongly disinclined to take the political-commercial risks of this kind of investment. The forecast here, in truth, is far more hopeful than the forecast for France. But the central point for Washington to remember is that pressure on Japan in this situation will almost certainly be counter-productive. Patience is once more the watchword.

MARKED for READING

Unusual friendships among animals give rise to rather incongruous situations at times. I remember a case where a somewhat elderly chow dog became so affectionately disposed towards a pial wagtail that his whole day was spent in utter misery if he failed to have his morning romp with the bird. In order to enjoy the bird's company, the chow had to take a 400-yard walk down the road, and, further, had to squeeze himself through a tiny slit in the fence.

Recognition for Bravery

After reading in the press about the heroic Greek steward who rescued the girl from the waters off Trial Island, I think it would be terrible if this brave man was not given some token of appreciation from the citizens of Victoria, or Canada for that matter. No greater act of heroism or bravery was ever performed, and should such a fund be started there is a donation here.

Renewed and Refreshed

For several years we have been fortunate enough to spend a week's holiday in Fred Lansberg's Sunshine Camp in Sooke.

This year again we had a very capable leader and young ambitious counselors. Everything was well organized and there was a friendly atmosphere.

The cook is an old-timer. The meals she puts on the table look so appetizing and are so tasty.

There is always a nurse available. She occupies another building well equipped for medical help in case of emergency.

There are playgrounds and a wading pool besides the beach where the little ones can play to their heart's content.

The counselors take care of all the children.

The mothers get a complete rest, which they need so much, as most of the families visiting Sunshine Camp are needy families living in difficult circumstances.

Mothers are encouraged to create something original. Lots of ceramics are being made every year. At the end of each camp an exhibition is put on showing all the work. Everybody is proud to take something home, something made by himself.

Personally, I feel a different person when I go home. The camp gives me new courage and a clearer outlook on life.

It is through the generosity of the citizens of Victoria that this project is operated and maintained for so many who could ill afford a holiday.

No Elevators

Woodward's is certainly to be congratulated on its excellent Shopping Centre.

However, in this city there are numerous elderly people, disabled people and mothers with small infants, all of whom, surely, are due certain considerations. I was appalled to find no suitable ramps from the roadways onto the sidewalks of the Plaza and no passenger elevator in the main store. How can people in wheelchairs and mothers with baby carriages get to the upper floor of the department store?

In this day and age one would expect that such facilities would automatically be included in new building projects. It is to be hoped that this oversight will be rectified in the very near future.

Inequitable Representation

If anything was needed to expose the farcical and fraudulent in most "democratic" electoral systems, like ours, both federal and provincial, it was strikingly demonstrated in the recent Norwegian double change of government, little noticed here.

The two main parties having 78 members each, the balance of power was completely and absurdly held by a splinter group of two members, who in August decided to oust the Labor government (after 28 years) on account of some coal mining accident, and within 25 days, decided to put them back in power again!

All this for want of a simple and essential rule, fair to all parties, whereby the vote in the House should be decided by the same percentage of votes as in the general election—in this case 49 per cent instead of the impracticable 51 per cent demanded.

But apparently modern "democracy" demands that we continue to perpetrate this kind of paradox and the almost unbelievable crime of allowing 56 per cent of the popular vote to "elect" 61 of the available candidates, and the other 44 per cent of the votes to elect only four opposition members, instead of 28 and the government 37, as recently in Alberta, for want of simple arithmetic and honesty—44,500 votes to elect each of the opposition and 6,200 to elect each government member!

In an election primarily for policy and party, and incidentally for candidate, common sense and objectivity surely demand 100 members elected of the respective stripes demanded by the voters in 100 constituencies with 100,000 votes cast. The simple constituency average vote system and transferred surpluses ensure this.

The B.C. election simply repeats the same scandalous miscarriage of justice, as did the previous election — and New Brunswick, Newfoundland, Prince Edward Island, etc. True, the popular vote figures are casually recorded as a mere mathematical detail, but the simple and dismal fact remains that B.C. voters specifically and primarily insisted on 21 SC seats, 15 NDP, 10 Liberals, and six Conservatives, instead of which they are unjustly and fraudulently saddled with 34 SC, 13 NDP, five Liberals and no Conservatives, because of peculiarly shaped constituencies and discarded surplus party votes.

Shades of (U.S.A.) "Electoral College" callous diversion of the voters' specific instructions.

Perhaps eventually, some federal or provincial government will have the courage of its convictions and with a desire for decency will eliminate these grotesque defects and fraud and restore political sanity, prestige and democracy.

Chest Pain

I see each year many persons who are fairly certain that they have a heart attack because they have had some pain in their chest. Some of these people have been to many physicians, and have had many electrocardiograms made, but still they are puzzled as to what caused the pain. Often, in a few minutes I can be fairly certain that the pain did not arise in the heart. Why? Because it does not come with exertion.

ALVAREZ

The man may tell me that he can walk rapidly along the street, or he can run up a flight of stairs. He is not short of breath; his mind is good, and he can lie flat in bed at night — with only one pillow. His ankles show no swelling. As he talks to me in the office he shows no shortness of breath. Evidently he has a good heart. Most important of all, he has a "good cardiac reserve." He is like an automobile that has plenty of reserve power that will enable it to go not only along the level, but up a steep mountain grade.

In typical cases of angina pectoris, or heart pain, the man is likely to say that he is most likely to get it in the winter when, after breakfast, he walks against a stiff cold wind. It is likely to be relieved quickly with a tablet of nitroglycerin. In some cases the anginal pain comes with anger.

As Dr. Tinsley R. Harrison recently pointed out, the physician who would make a good diagnosis must take a good history and then must know what it means.

Many of the men who sometimes have anginal pain can also have a chest pain due to arthritis of joints in the front or back of the chest wall, or some soreness in the muscles of the shoulder girdle, due perhaps to a Saturday spent in painting a room. Or the man may get some pain from gas in his bowel or in his stomach; gas which is pressing up against his midriff. Or he may have some pain referred up into his chest from a diseased gallbladder or a diseased pancreas (the large digestive gland just back of the stomach).

Rarely, pain in the chest can be due to a little "hiatus hernia," or the squeezing of a bit of the upper end of the stomach through the hole in the diaphragm which passes the gullet. This pain is likely to come when, after a large meal, the person leans over to untie his shoelaces. On rare occasions I get a pain in my chest wall which I can recognize as due to a cramp in a bit of the muscle which lies between two ribs.

Often I think to myself that it is fortunate that I am a physician, because otherwise I would worry needlessly — mistaking some harmless chest pain for that of a heart attack. Occasionally I see a person whose pain is due to an arthritis in the joint between the lower end of the breast-bone and the little piece of cartilage that lies just below it. Sometimes I get a fairly severe distress in my chest which I think is a form of heartburn. This has nothing to do with the heart but is due to acid juice from the stomach regurgitating upward into an overly-sensitive gullet.

Sometimes nowadays a man with a harmless chest distress is supposed to have heart pain because someone read too much into slight and insignificant changes in his electrocardiogram.

As my friend, Dr. Myron Prinzmetal of Los Angeles has shown, if an electrocardiogram can be made while the person is having a heart pain, definite changes in the electrocardiogram usually can be found.

When a man has typical attacks of angina, with normal electrocardiograms, I often get great help from the "two-step" test of another friend, Dr. Arthur Master, of New York City. When the patient is made to walk back and forth over two steps, if he has a narrow coronary artery in his heart, certain typical changes will appear in his electrocardiogram. Then one knows that the man has a narrow coronary artery that has not yet plugged up.

Strike Right Supported For CS

QUEBEC (CP)—The Quebec Liberal Federation has voted in favor of letting provincial civil servants form a labor union with the right to strike.

Strongest objections to giving the province's 30,000 government employees strike rights were voiced by an English-language delegate from Montreal.

Anthony Malcolm said civil servants should go through compulsory arbitration in any differences with the government. "They have no reason to tie up the whole administration, our whole lives, our whole future," he said.

Other speakers, however, said if the Liberal party was going to vote in favor of letting civil servants form a labor union, it should go all the way and give them the strike right too.

Pierre Chauvin, member of the federation's political commission which proposed the resolution, said Great Britain and Saskatchewan allow civil servants the right to strike "and things go very well."

Terrorist 'Blackmail' Condemned by Lesage

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Jean Lesage, speaking at the end of a Liberal party meeting, promised Sunday the Quebec government will continue to treat the province's minorities well.

And to solid applause, he condemned acts of terrorists and extremists in the province.

Mr. Lesage was speaking at the close of the three-day annual meeting of the Quebec Liberal Federation which approved a string of recommendations aimed at changing the functions of legislature members and civil servants.

The meeting also rejected, after 90 minutes of debate, a suggestion that would have allowed Quebec Liberals to support another party in federal politics.

The rejection was immediately followed by the public resignations from the party of a former Liberal candidate and his wife.

Pierre Leger, who ran for the Commons in 1962 but refused to run in 1963 because he couldn't support the federal Liberals' nuclear policy, handed in his membership card.

SUPPORTS CHANGE Mr. Leger was among those who supported a constitutional change which would have opened the way for a Quebec Liberal to support another party in federal politics. But the move was voted down, 332 to 155, though it had the support of Rene Levesque, Quebec's outspoken natural resources minister.

Mr. Lesage said the Quebec government represents all the people of Quebec, whatever their language or religion. The government would not "give in to blackmail" from anyone.

"We will not permit provocations, especially if they come from some activist faction which believes that violence is the only way to change the course of events."

"These extremist attitudes show a defeatism and a lack of confidence in democracy. Let those who say they speak for people do as we do—let them get themselves elected."

TENANTS PACKAGE POLICY Includes fire, theft (on or off premises), burglary and liability for as little as $10 per year.

HOME GARDEN

By HILDA BEASTALL

Let's Take Stock

As the last of the brilliantly colored annuals disappear from the garden we should make a few written notes about those which did particularly well, or which pleased us for some reason.

Our summer was not as consistently sunny and warm as the few past seasons, yet it averaged up to about normal.

Among the larger, tall growing annuals we liked the African Marigold Climax strain for long lasting, well proportioned flowers.

The new Doubleton marigold sent out by the raisers in California as an advance trial surpassed the Climax strain in size, perfection of form and longevity when cut. The color also was slightly more pleasing both as a cut flower and a garden decoration, having a warm tone underlying the yellow, not of a difficult orange hue.

Fragrance was pleasantly light, instead of heavily pungent.

Combining well with Doubleton was Zinnia Firecracker, a fiery red of the large cactus type. Narrow somewhat twisted petals added an informality just right with the perfect globes of Doubleton.

The new Zinnia Thumbelina kept up a grand display to the last. We hated to pull up the plants but knowing a few hours frost would ruin them, we crammed a half dozen bowls into two large brown bowls for low coffee tables.

They looked quite lovely for several days.

Less flamboyant but just as useful in a more intimate sunny corner was a grouping of dark blue Salvia hornum Blue Bird with Phlox Glamour sprawling in between and around.

This annual phlox is the most lovely soft salmon pink, growing about 15 inches high, but its one fault is a semi-reclining habit. However, planted with something dark and upright such as the blue salvia to show off its exquisite shade, Glamour can be forgiven its one fault.

Next year, these annuals may delight you in your garden, or you may have tried something else new this summer which can be used more extensively another year. Make notes of them now—it's the only way to be sure of remembering them when spring planning time comes around again.

SYNOPSIS—An active storm which passed over the north coast Sunday night is now bringing gusty winds and rain to most of the south coast. However some improvement should take place as the storm moves into the interior. Another storm of the series appears to be developing off to the southwest and it will reach the coast tonight and pass through the interior Tuesday. Hence any improvement in weather today will be short-lived, for rain and gusty winds will return to the coast tonight and to the interior Tuesday.

SAANICH
Police Board Protests Central Court

Saanich police commission has endorsed a Victoria Bar Association brief opposing the use of Saanich's police court facilities for Greater Victoria police courts.

Coun. Leslie Passmore, who has criticized the new arrangement since it was made in the summer, voted with Commissioner G. S. Eden to notify Attorney-General Bonner of the decision.

Reeve Stanley Murphy, third member of the commission, voted against the move.

RAMMED THROUGH
Bar association president Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre said last week the Saanich court setup was inconvenient and had been rammed down the public's throat.

Former Victoria police chief John Blackstock joined in the chorus of condemnation the next day.

He said the system was "inadequate, inconvenient and wasteful of time, men, equipment and money."

The merged Greater Victoria police court came about by order of the attorney-general after an Archer report recommendation.

Canada, Britain Sign Atom Pact

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada and Britain today signed a new nuclear agreement which reflects growing international acceptance of the Canadian concept for construction of atomic power plants able to produce electricity economically. Atomic Energy of Canada Limited and the United Kingdom Atomic Energy Authority announced the agreement in joint statements here and in London. It is designed to extend and regulate collaboration between the two countries on the development of power reactors which employ the use of heavy water and natural or slightly enriched uranium fuel. Officials of Crown-owned Atomic Energy of Canada said the agreement is clear recognition by the British of the merits of the Canadian-pioneered system.

A number of other countries, including India and Pakistan, now are negotiating to buy Canadian power plants. Others, including the United States and Japan, are expressing growing interest in the Canadian concept.

EXTENDS CO-OPERATION

The new British-Canadian agreement is an extension of long-standing co-operation between the two countries in the nuclear power field. It is designed primarily to facilitate the exchange of information, experience and "know-how" that is considered to be of commercial value.

The exchange of "know-how" is confined to that possessed by the two agencies.

Under the agreement, the British nuclear agency will pay the Canadian agency $750,000 in consideration of the intensive program already carried out by Canada in the development of heavy-water reactors. This represents payment by the British for information to be made available immediately.

Atomic Energy of Canada will supply the British agency with complete data—up to the manufacturing stage—of the nuclear fuel developed in this country for the Canadian reactor. The British agency also will pay a royalty of three per cent in the event that it supplies fuel of the Canadian type to any reactor operator whose plant has been designed or licensed by Atomic Energy of Canada or Canadian industry.

This provision anticipates the possibility of the British agency supplying such fuel to any country which buys a Canadian designed reactor.

Agriculturalist Wins Great Trek Award

One of Canada's foremost agricultural economists, Dr. Albert E. Richards, is this year's Great Trekker—highest honor bestowed by the University of B.C. student body upon an alumnus.

Selection of the retired officer of the Canadian agriculture department was based partly on the fact that he was an originator of the first Great Trek in 1923.

This took the university from its meagre collection of huts at Fairview to a permanent location on Point Grey two years later.

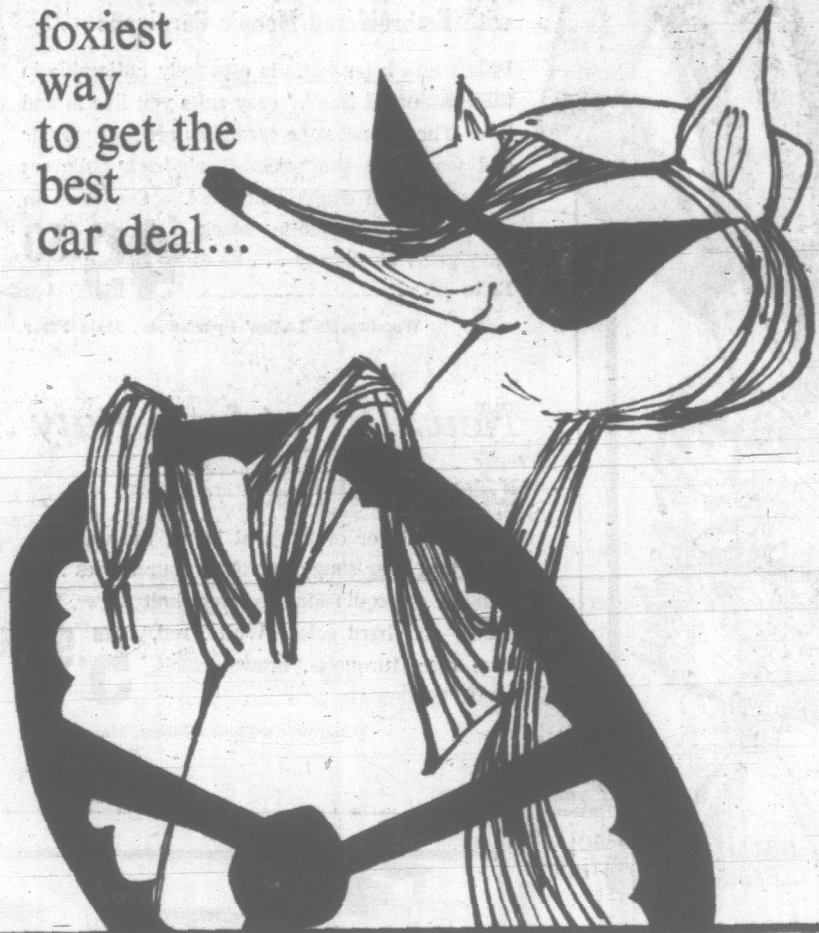

Dr. Richards was presented by UBC in 1949 with an honorary doctor of science.

Selection of the Trekker each year is also based on an alumnus' eminence in his field, service to his community and interest in the university.

Dr. Richardson was principal economist to the agriculture department, and served on the Agricultural Food Board.

He retired from the government service in 1961.

'Communism, Capitalism Both Failing'

TORONTO (CP) — Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson said Sunday communism and capitalism have failed and both may end in disaster.

"Communism fails in producing the goods people need," Mr. Thompson told a crowd of 4,000 Ukrainians.

"Capitalism is failing also. Not that it can not produce the goods—it can do this easily enough. It is that it fails to distribute the goods it produces to the folk who need them, right here in Toronto and in Canada, as well as in the needy nations overseas."

The Social Credit leader said capitalism's defect was due to a privileged group who have obtained a monopoly in issuing the nation's supply of money.

HINTS AT GRAIN SALE

Mr. Thompson hinted at Canada's recent grain sale to the Soviet Union when he said: "How strange it is that for so many years our surplus of grain lay idle in storage—and many other of our food surpluses still do—while many nations, our friends and allies in the theological struggle ... go hungry for want of money to pay the price."

The Ukrainians were commemorating the 30th anniversary of the 1933 "man-made famine" in their homeland. At that time 7,000,000 died when the Soviet Union seized food to force Ukrainian nationalists into submission.

Hard-Luck Farmer Hits Jackpot

CALGARY (CP)—A Lacombe district grain grower—hauled out two years running—is in the money.

An Irish sweepstake ticket brought 40-year-old Norman Morrical, $150,000 Saturday. He drew front-running commander-in-chief at the Cambridgeshire stakes in Newmarket, England.

Mr. Parley Morrical said in Lacombe, Alta., Sunday her son hasn't decided what to do with his windfall.

Last year he was completely hauled out when a freak storm cut down his 140-acre crop and touched only a bit of one neighbor's stand.

He was luckier this year. Some of his oats and barley was saved. But the rest was lost in a wide-ranging storm.

His mother said it must have cost him thousands of dollars. His crops weren't insured and he rents his farm.

His farm is about 3½ miles from the home farm near Clive. He has a wife, Josie, and a seven-year-old son, Lyn.

France Offers Development Aid to Iran

TEHRAN, Iran (Reuters) — French President de Gaulle last week offered aid to assist Iranian development when he addressed Parliament here during a five-day state visit.

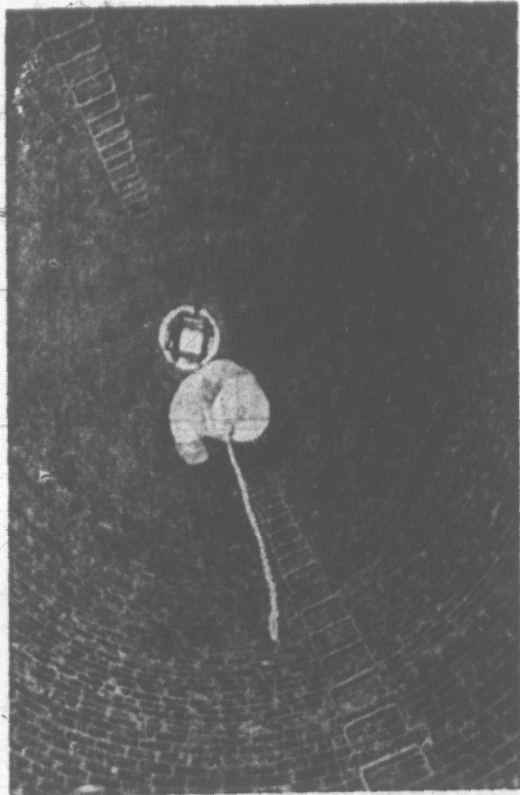

De Gaulle stressed the "deep solidarity" between the two countries and the desirability of closer links between them.

De Gaulle told a joint meeting of the houses of Parliament France had come to appreciate the extent of Iran's resources and was "more anxious than ever" to help with their development.

France itself would benefit from such aid in the long run, he said.

He told the legislators "your determination to remain simply and firmly yourselves, without for that reason failing to recognize undertakings and friendships, corresponds directly to the attitude France adopts for herself."

His visit was the first in history made by a French president to countries east of the Suez Canal.

3,000 Seattleites Make Muddy Protest

SEATTLE (AP)—About 3,000 persons gathered on a muddy playground Sunday as the climax of a March in support of an open housing ordinance being considered by the city council.

The crowd appeared about equally divided between Negroes and whites.

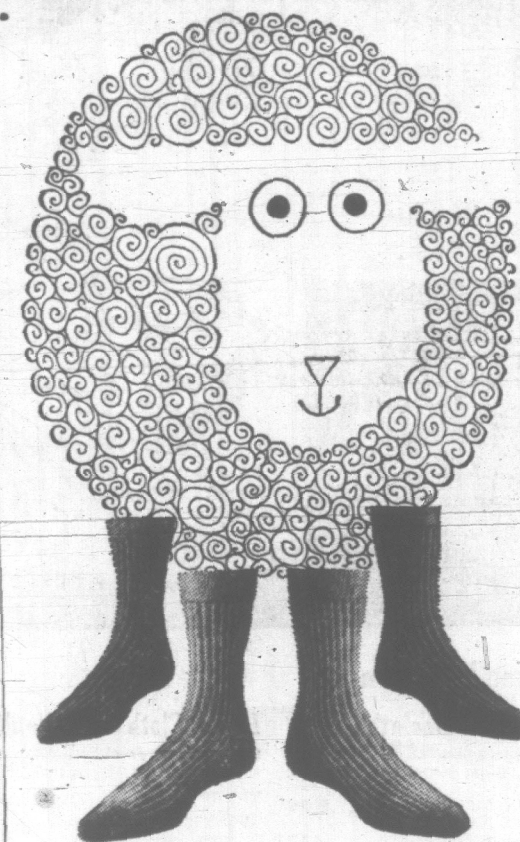

A number of Negro and white clergymen climbed on a stand on the rain-soaked Garfield High School field.

About 100 policemen were assigned to the area, but there were no incidents, and the marchers stacked their home-made signs neatly before they left the area.

The Rev. John Adams, head of the central area committee of civil rights, acted as master of ceremonies. Charles V. Johnson, an attorney who is president of the Seattle unit of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, told the crowd:

"We are saying to the city council we are tired of waiting for what is already ours ... we want equal housing, and we want it now. It is their (the council's) duty to right this wrong."

Automen Protest Gas Price 'Fix'

VANCOUVER (CP) — The National Automotive Trades Association has urged the federal government to take immediate action against major oil companies it claims are manipulating prices of gasoline and other automotive products contrary to anti-combines legislation.

Secretary Lloyd Kinneard said Sunday telegrams were sent to Prime Minister Pearson and Justice Minister Chevrier following the association's two-day conference here. The organization comprises representatives from automotive retail organizations across Canada.

The telegrams asked the government to act on recommendations made 18 months ago in the restrictive trades practices commission report. "Since the commission's report, the situation has grown worse to the detriment of independent service station operators and the public at large," the association said.

The commission's report recommended prohibition of payment of "kickback" money by manufacturers and wholesalers of automotive products to oil companies for selling their products.

Ask Premier... People Want To Invest in B.C.

Record-Breaking Spree at Mutuels Marks Greatest-Ever Racing Season

By HAL MALONE

Legalized gambling—if you overlook bingo and church bazaar raffles—closed shop in B.C. for 1963 at 6:04 p.m. Saturday. While some of the horses seemed to be glad the longest season (101 days) in provincial history was over, the same couldn't be said for patrons.

Even at the end, with darkness descending and damp air infiltrating their snuggles, they made one final assault on the ticket windows.

For a vast majority the pain of winter hibernation was eased when Leagrant, the good thing, circled his field and returned a 100 per cent dividend on every $2 win ticket. The corporal's guard who had the wisdom to link him with Powder Burns left with $84.10 in their pockets.

Overall, the 3,964 faithful who made the final pilgrimage to Sandown bet $163,512. This ran the 17-day Island to a record $1,799,028, hoisted the daily average play to $100,531. Toss in Exhibition Park's previously unheard of $16,225,037 handle over 84 days for a grand total of $17,934,065—another record.

As Premier Bennett says, people want to invest in B.C. Among outstanding individual accomplishments, gold-leaf cigars are due Jean Jessop, leading rider with 27; Sid Martin, leading trainer with eight; and Duane Onstad, the Daddy Warbucks of the punter brigade.

Each a Stake—and Duane the Biggest

It was more than coincidence that all three had an immense stake in Sandown's unofficial endurance championship, Saturday's mile and five-eighths fourth race.

His fantastic record of having ridden at least one winner a day broken by a spill Friday, his ribs tightly taped, Jessop wanted to go out in championship style.

Martin needed one more winner to shake off Tommy Fenton and repeat as leading trainer.

Onstad had a double motivation. He wanted Hymfaxe to become the first horse in history to win five races at any Sandown meeting.

Such was his confidence in Hymfaxe, who has won from six furlongs to a mile and three-eighths, on fast tracks and muddy paths, that he wagered $1,000 to win. No sooner had he picked up his 100th $10 win ticket than the odds-board price on Hymfaxe changed from 8-5 to 1-9. For all anybody knew, the correct odds could have been 1-15 or 1-20. The totalizer does not go beyond 1-9.

Giving away from three to 15 pounds, on a rock-hard track he doesn't fancy, and going a distance he had never tried, Hymfaxe lived up to everybody's expectations. Snuggled behind the pace, Hymfaxe took the lead with three-eighths to go and then ran the race of his life to win by the length of his black neck.

He had his record and another—his time of 2:47.3 displaced the mark of 2:48.4 set by Text, Oct. 7, 1957.

Up in the stands owner Onstad wiped perspiration from his brow and vowed "I'll never do that again." Mrs. Onstad sat silently. Her knuckles were white. Not one suspect, from the cold air either.

Sentiment, Smoke... 193 Days to Go

If everyone connected with Hymfaxe directly and indirectly, they could take some assurance from Les Whittle, the apprentice on Old Boag who clung to the winner, all through the stretch.

"I made three big efforts to catch him," said Whittle, "but he's so game he just wouldn't stop. I don't think I could have made him give up if we had gone around again."

Next year Hymfaxe will do his "going around" on prairie tracks. R. K. "Red" Smith of Calgary took him for $12,500.

The Hymfaxe drama relegated the split division Island championship to second place in consumer interest. Sentimentally the gathering wanted Lord Renraw, once a champion, to prevail once more in the twilight of his career. The sentimentalists had their way.

PAUL SCORES TWICE...

United Attack Still Stop-and-Go Thing

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Victoria United has chalked up its first triumph of the Pacific Coast Soccer League season. And in that 3-0 victory over New Westminster Royals, United came up with more goals than the team managed in four previous outings.

Does it mean United's troubles have been resolved? Not quite.

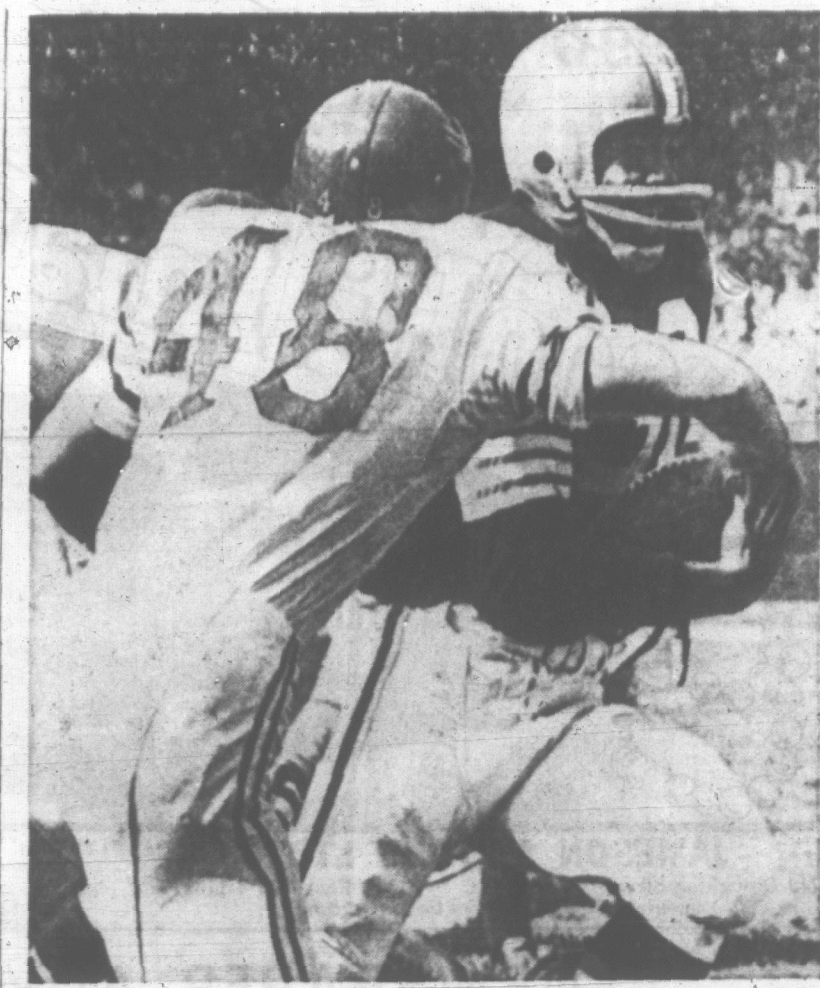

Saturday's victory at Royal Athletic Park was refreshing enough for the mediocre (573 paid) turnout of United supporters, but it didn't suggest that the balance of the campaign is going to be an all-conquering march for Victoria.

The three goals were most appetizing following the famine, sure enough, but the offence of United is still a stop-and-go thing.

For most of the first half, it was "go." For all but the last five minutes of the second half, it was "stop."

George Paul, recruited from the inside post, scored two goals for United but still doesn't appear to be the answer to the centre-forward problem. He's an able ball handler, capable of pushing it around effectively, but his speed and stamina is questionable.

There is no doubt Paul was

'LAUGHING ALL THE WAY...'

Big laugh was worn by fullback Jimmie Brown of Cleveland on this second-quarter eight-yard run Sunday against Philadelphia Eagles. Gain gave him a career total of three yards more than old record of 8,296 set by Joe Perry. Brown went on to gain 144 yards to establish new record at 8,390 yards as Cleveland won 37-7 to take two-game lead in the National Football League's eastern division with 6-0 record. Vainly attempting to restrain Brown is No. 48, Ben Scotti.

Howe Is Philosophical As Big Goal Invalidated

By The Canadian Press

A blast of the whistle by referee Frank Udvari has preserved Maurice Richard's goal—collecting record in the National Hockey League for at least another three days.

Gordie Howe's assault on the mark appeared to have reached a successful conclusion Sunday night. But it was not so.

The big guy lofted a 70-footer into Toronto's empty net after goalie Johnny Bower of the Maple Leafs had been lifted for a sixth attacker.

Udvari whistled it down, invalidating the goal.

He ruled Howe's teammate Alex Delvecchio had started the play illegally by shovelling the puck with his gloved hand.

Eight days ago, a goal by the Detroit right-winger was wiped out under similar circumstances. He put the puck into the net in a game against Boston Bruins. But it was disallowed because of a penalty to the Red Wings.

Kempf Sets Record As Lions Cop Flag

Riders' Chances Aren't Damaged With 33-33 Tie

By The Canadian Press

Pre-season speculators said British Columbia Lions would improve this season, possibly even finish second to Calgary Stampede in the Western Football Conference.

But they hadn't heard of a Canadian rookie named Peter Kempf.

Kempf has been the Canadian Football League's kicking phenom this season and Saturday night booted four field goals and two converts to lead the Lions to a 32-6 win over Edmonton Eskimos.

It gave the Lions their first conference title with an 11-3 record and Kempf set a CFL kicking mark. It gave him 22 field goals this season, three better than the old record set in 1954 by Joe Aguirre of Saskatchewan Roughriders.

Kempf now has 103 points in 14 games this season, good for second place in the Western scoring race, only 14 points behind George Fleming of Winnipeg Blue Bombers. Kempf has 22 field goals, 33 converts and four singles. Fleming, also a placement kicker, includes seven touchdowns in his points total.

In a Saturday afternoon game, Calgary and Saskatchewan battled to a 33-33 tie which left the fight for the last two playoff spots open.

Lions jumped into an early lead in the game at Vancouver, taking advantage of penalties and errors by the Eskimos to go ahead 10-0 at the end of the first quarter. They led 19-0 after the second and 26-6 at the end of the third.

Nub Beamer, Willie Fleming and Ron Morris scored touchdowns before the crowd of 29,133.

Edmonton quarterback Lynn Amedee, who played all but the second quarter, hit Tommy-Joe Coffey with a 48-yard touchdown pass in the third quarter for Edmonton's only points.

Calgary was ahead 16-7 after the first quarter, 26-18 after 30 minutes and 26-24 after three quarters.

Stampede's touchdowns were scored by fullback Earl Lunsford, quarterback Eagle Day, end Bruce Claridge and halfback Jim Dollard. Larry Robinson booted two field goals and three converts.

Flanker Dale West, end Jack Gotta, flanker Hugh Campbell and halfback Ed Buchanan, a recent purchase from Calgary, scored Saskatchewan touchdowns. Tackle Reg Whitehouse kicked two field goals and two converts and quarterback Frank Trippucka counted a single on a kick kick.

Day completed 18 of 28 passes in the game to break by 12 the previous record of 216 completions in a season set by Trippucka.

A sidelight to the Lions' big win was the presentation of gifts to the "two millionth" fan to pass through Vancouver Empire Stadium turnstiles since the Lions were formed in 1954.

Coffey crossed the B.C. goal-line on the first play of the game but the pass play was called back because of a move by Eskimo teammate Eldon Fortie.

The import rookie from Brigham Young University forgot the CFL rule against downfield blocking on pass plays and took out linebacker Gary Schwertfeger, who was losing ground to Coffey anyway.

Eskimos were penalized, held at the Lions' 27, and Schwertfeger completed the plot by blocking Bill Mitchell's field goal attempt.

Lions rolled up 29 first downs, 180 yards rushing and 284 passing. Quarterback Joe Kapp struck on 21 of 31 pass attempts and Canadian rookie Pete Olier, a late substitute, completed his only pass.

SQUASH FINAL

Ragan Extends Champ

The next time Brooks Ragan comes to Victoria for a squash racquets tournament he can expect more respect from the seeding committee.

Unseeded in the annual Victoria Invitational tournament at the Racquet Club, the Seattle athlete flashed a fine collection of strokes and almost walked away with the big prize.

Ragan upset Vancouver's second-seeded Bruce Jaffray in Saturday's semifinals and had defending champion Sandy Robertson of Vancouver on the ropes in Sunday's class "A" final.

Robertson had to battle from behind to survive in a marathon struggle, finally downing Ragan by scores of 7-15, 15-11, 15-10, 15-8.

Marjorie Stephenson of the Racquet Club came out on top in the women's final, defeating Nora Fenwick, last year's champion from HMCS Naden, by scores of 15-12, 8-15, 15-12, 11-15, 15-10 in another long match.

Results of other finals:

"B" Division—Neil Deslauriers, Vancouver, defeated Bill Bell, Victoria, 15-8, 15-10, 17-15.

"C" Division—John Crighton, Victoria, defeated Bert Bell, Victoria, 15-13, 15-10, 15-14.

"D" Division—Doug Hawkes, Victoria, defeated Bob Stoddart, Vancouver, 15-13, 15-10, 15-10.

"E" Division—George Thompson, Victoria, defeated Matt Matthews, Victoria, 15-10, 15-10, 15-10.

"F" Division—George Evans, Victoria, defeated Bob Kerr, Vancouver, 15-12, 15-10, 15-8.

"G" Division—Andy Maxwell, Royal Roads, defeated Dominick Rodonacchi, HMCS Naden.

Stingy Sailor Squads Sail Shutout Course

Sailors are the stingiest people this season in the Victoria Rugby Union's second division.

In a total of six matches, the Navy squad and the Naval Technical School side have given away only 14 points while sharing undefeated courses.

All the 14 have been yielded by Navy, which boosted its own total to 89 while chalking up a fourth straight victory Saturday with an 18-0 conquest of Royal Roads.

Tech playing its second match Saturday, thumped Cowichan 31-0 and has now tallied 83 points without allowing a score.

Saturday's other match also ended in a shutout as Victoria

Dirom, Brinham Prove Athletics Are Threat

Neil Dirom and Doug Brinham appear to have answered a question that popped up when Alberni Athletics announced they were returning to senior "A" basketball wars after skipping league competition for a season.

Athletics came back to Inter-City League and people started asking if they had enough power to threaten the four holdover clubs.

Their big acquisition was Dirom, a member of last year's Canadian national team who is slick in the pivot and sharp on the boards. Their big question mark was the veteran Brinham, the bounding jumpshot ace who was hampered last season by a shoulder injury.

Brinham and Dirom came along with the Athletics for a pre-season exhibition clash against Victoria Haida Chiefs Saturday at Central Junior High School.

They never looked better.

MARTIN WORKS 30

Dirom worked in close for 23 points. Brinham cruised on the outside and potted 17. Their mates also exhibited considerable talent in the fast, crowd-pleasing clash as Athletics proved they belong by walking off with an 80-70 victory.

Chiefs, appearing better balanced than their third-place club of last season, were leading 56-55 starting the final quarter and could have won it with sharper shooting.

Big Norris Martin made a tremendous effort to give Haida a win and finished with a total of 30 points. Darrel Lorimer added 13.

Chiefs and Athletics clash again Thursday in Alberni.

Alberni—Dirom 22, Kropp 10, Brinham 17, Lenton 12, Taylor 10, Johnson 2, Grisdale 6, Total—80.

Haida—Chiefs—Wilson 12, Lorimer 12, Simmonds 8, Martin 30, Tomlinson 2, Devlin 5, Sotwood 2, Sadler 4, Cunningham 2, McCulloch 2, Total—70.

Man Arrested In Drug Theft

$10,000 Bail Set For Mainland Addict

A Vancouver drug addict was arrested early Sunday morning by city detectives in connection with the Oct. 10 narcotics robbery of McGill and Orme, 1103 Pandora.

Robert R. Smith, 31, in-city police court this morning was charged with breaking and entering and theft.

He elected a judge and jury trial. Preliminary hearing was set for Monday, and bail was set at $10,000.

City detectives arrested the man after staking out a spot on Millstream Road.

Drugs were not on him when he was found, but a tracking dog helped detectives find a cache under a bush nearby.

An RCMP officer was with them when the drugs were found. RCMP have been working with city police on the case.

Det. Ins. Charles Webb confirmed this morning that the drugs recovered are believed to be part of the haul a burglar took from a locked drawer in the drug store after breaking in through a window Oct. 10. Smith originally came from Winnipeg.

City prosecutor Peter Birkett, asking that substantial bail be set, told the court today that Smith is:

"Unemployed, has no fixed address, has a record, and is a drug-user."

Mr. Birkett, who said the

Three Prices For Buyers Of Car Fuel

Victoria motorists had a choice of three prices for gasoline today.

Major oil companies offered regular gas this morning at 38.9 cents per gallon and premium at 43.9.

The exception was Shell Oil which was still selling at 39.9 and 44.9 cents.

The so-called off-brand stations which buy from various producing companies, were selling at 37.9 and 42.9 per premium.

Woodward's Mayfair station, which precipitated the price-cutting last week, was closed today.

But if the store holds to its announced aim of underselling the majors by 2 cents and the off-brands by 1 cent, it can be expected to drop to 36.9 and 41.9 Tuesday.

However, this could not be confirmed immediately. And the store was content Saturday to merely match its lowest competitors.

The gas war is on again also in the Cowichan Valley, and over the weekend Standard, Texaco, Imperial and Home Oil service stations lowered their gas prices.

Regular dropped from 41.9 to 39.9 cents, and super from 46.9 to 44.9 cents.

A BA service station manager said this morning that he expects his company will lower prices today. Shell station operators are also waiting to hear from their company.

FALL FATAL

William Clark, 74, 1136 Empress, died Friday when he fell down two flights of stairs at the New England Hotel.

City police took him to the Royal Jubilee Hospital, where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

Union, Yard Stalled On Naming Chairman

Arbitration hearings in the Yarrow's-boilermakers' union dispute are being delayed by failure to agree on a chairman.

If there is continued disagreement, Labor Minister Leslie Peterson may have to name a chairman.

Named to represent the boilermakers is union secretary James McConachy. Burrard Dry Dock Ltd. personnel manager J. W. Thompson will represent Yarrow's Ltd.

Agreement to submit to arbitration followed a walkout. The dispute began Oct. 10 when 262 Yarrow's shipbuilders, members of the Brotherhood of Boilermakers, Iron Shipbuilders, Blacksmiths, Forgers and Helpers walked out.

They told company officials they were "ill" but union representatives later said the walkout was caused by a work jurisdiction dispute with the Shipwrights' Union.

Boilermakers had charged Yarrow's with disregarding jurisdiction of work recently taken on by shipwrights and traditionally claimed by boilermakers.

Provincial labor relations officer W. T. McLaughlin was credited with ending the walkout after union-management mediation.

The finding of the arbitration hearing will be binding.

MOONEY WRONG

'Don't Waver' On Square Says Wilson

Mayor R. B. Wilson today vigorously defended the centennial Victoria Square program.

Just returned from his vacation, he endorsed council's opposition to Ald. M. H. Mooney's surprise demand last week for a re-appraisal of the civic precinct before contracts are let for construction.

"The project is just as good now as when it was conceived and endorsed by the ratepayers," said the mayor.

"It is making good progress and I don't think we should waver."

NEW BUILDING

Ald. Mooney had said that the city should study possibility of replacing the Pandora City Hall with an entirely new building or making the Bastion Square Courthouse into a permanent city hall just to be sure that it was not making a mistake with the civic precinct.

But Mayor Wilson countered that the courthouse, while making an admirable temporary City Hall, was not acceptable as a permanent civic home.

He also opposed tearing down the Pandora City Hall instead of renovating its interior.

"If you tear down all the historic buildings Victoria would become just another chrome and glass city."

SOME GEMS

"We have some architectural gems here that other cities would give their eye teeth to have and we should endeavor to maintain our natural individuality," said the mayor.

He also emphasized that the civic precinct was not just a project to improve the civic accommodation but also a major rehabilitation program for the downtown area.

'GOOD HOME' ASSURED FOUNTAIN

A special study likely will be made at City Hall to decide the fate of the water fountain removed from the Roundabout.

Mayor R. B. Wilson said today he would like to be sure that the best location is chosen before the fountain, commissioned as a commemoration of the city's 75th anniversary in 1937, is put up again.

So far there are two factions on the question.

Largest group favors erection of the fountain in Bastion Square when it is landscaped—a project expected to be launched next spring.

Another group prefers to see the fountain returned to the Douglas-Hillside intersection on the small triangular divider that has replaced the circular lawn.

So far only the Bastion Square location has drawn comment and it was favorable.

A third possibility exists—the projected beautification of city property opposite Pioneer Square on Quadra—and more may be raised if a study precedes the final selection.

GAME ACT CHALLENGED

Indians Appeal In Hunting Case

A notice of appeal was filed in County Court at Nanaimo today against a Nanaimo magistrate's ruling that Indians have no right to hunt out-of-season on unoccupied lands.

The appeal was filed by Thomas Berger, Vancouver lawyer and a former NDP MP for Vancouver-Burrard, acting on behalf of Indian bands on the east coast of Vancouver Island.

The appeal follows a judgment by Magistrate Lionel Beaver-Potts convicting Clifford White and David Boy, Nanaimo Reserve, of being in possession of six deer carcasses. They were each fined $100.

The magistrate dismissed defence evidence that a treaty signed by Governor James Douglas in 1852 gave Indians unlimited hunting rights.

The magistrate ruled the treaty was not pertinent to the case.

$31,375 DAILY NEEDED BY DRIVE

The United Appeal fund is growing, but so is the need for greater returns each day as the drive for $400,000 enters its final eight days.

The fund now stands at $149,035, just 37.2 per cent of the target.

And that means that the Appeal now needs $31,375 every day till Oct. 31.

Appeal officials have stressed that they will take money by mail, by phone, by payroll deduction, by contribution at the Appeal booth on Douglas at Yates.

It may be taken to Appeal headquarters at 1951 Cook Street next to the City Welfare Dept., or if it's a large amount—have it collected at the donor's home or office.

Appeal phone number is EV 5-6708.

Ship Grounded By Gusty Wind

Canora Escapes Damage in Harbor; Line Crews Kept on Hop Up-Island

Blustery fall weather began toying with Victoria shipping, communications and power supply in the last 24 hours.

Gusting winds blew a 2,400-ton vessel ashore briefly and knocked out several electrical and telephone lines.

Most serious mishap occurred at 8:30 this morning when the CNR railway car ferry Canora grounded, hard against the Victoria Machinery Depot's Bay Street plant.

Canora was docking with a full load of cars at her Point Ellice berth when a line parted.

Thirty-mile winds, gusting to 40, carried her broadside across the harbor. She fitted nicely between the bridge and the Fisheries Department vessel Hunter Point which was alongside at VMD. Neither was endangered.

Captain Douglas Atlin radioed immediately for tugs. Island Tug and Barge sent Island Planet, Island Trooper and Warren Tugs sent MT3. They got lines aboard quickly and berthed Canora again snugly. Captain Atlin said he thought there was no damage to his vessel but he planned an inspection of her bottom plates.

The frolicsome southeaster that caused all the trouble eased off to allow a smooth rescue operation according to tug company officials.

BULKS LARGE

CNR transport officer G. A. Hannon said in most cases the Canora would lie off and not attempt a landing in stiff winds because she bulks so largely above the waterline.

He said the landing was further impeded by the presence of a log boom projecting into the harbor south of the berth on the Victoria West side.

Meanwhile, these other reports of fall weather damage came in:

B.C. Hydro said a tree fell across a primary (heavy load) power line at East Sooke today at about 8 a.m., cutting power to many rural residents. Line crews were still out at mid-morning.

There were also spotty power interruptions in Ardmore, Sidney and Shawnigan areas.

A primary snapped Sunday night on Hampshire Road, blacking out a large portion of Oak Bay between 8:36 p.m. and 9:45 p.m.

B.C. Telephone Company said weather caused a few problems overnight, but mostly up-Island.

Impaired Charge Follows Crash Injuring Five

A 27-year-old man was charged in city police court today with impaired driving after he was involved in an accident Sunday that sent five people to hospital.

John Robbie, 1143 Colville, asked for an adjournment until Wednesday.

Police said he was in a collision Sunday afternoon about 3:30 at Bay and Catherine with a car driven by Mrs. Darlene Morgan, 1546 Oakcrest.

Taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital were Mrs. Morgan, son Glen, 9½ months; Carol, 3½ years; Jillian, 2½ years; and Miss Merle Marshall, 1280 Newport, a passenger with Robbie.

Vandals Wreak $3,000 Damage On Forest Lab

Vandals hit the government forestry laboratory building under construction on Burnside Road Sunday and did about $3,000 worth of damage.

A fire had been started in a rubbish heap and was reported at 5:30 p.m. by Bob Marshall, an employee of the builders, Burns and Dutton Ltd.

Saanich fire department extinguished the flames, and police found that tarpaulins had been ripped off three large boiler units and the gauges had been smashed.

FITTINGS TORN OUT

Electric lights and fittings in the building were torn out. An electric motor, oxygen cans and bottles, ladders, lumber and sections of cork sheeting had been thrown into a large concrete sump containing two feet of water.

COMPETING for the title of Miss ACRA is Mrs. Romana Hepburn, co-manager of the Bel Isle Motel, Victoria. Miss ACRA will be elected on Sunday when the Auto Courts and Resorts Association of B.C. meet in Vancouver. Miss ACRA will go on to compete with the winners of the B.C. Hotels Association and B.C. division of the Canadian Restaurant Association for the title of Miss B.C. Hospitality. (Times Photo.)

Beauty and Real Sturdiness Combined in New Tableware By PENNY SAVER

When serving guests or family do you enjoy using fine china but find it impractical because of fragility?

For this reason, manufacturers have produced a new tableware which combines strength and durability with the beauty of ordinary china.

This coupe-shaped tableware is patterned in pristine white, classic or cornflower, and is three times stronger than ordinary tableware, withstands heat, is chip-resistant, will not stain or craze, and is easily stored through compact stacking.

Guaranteed for three years, tableware is suitable for breakfast, lunch, tea, dinner—formal or informal dining—goes with informal mats or formal damask.

As well as the usual plates, cups and saucers, and serving bowls, accessories such as saucepan-server and covers, percolators, beverage servers, saucepan candlewarmer, detachable saucepan handle, and cream and sugar sets are also in stock.

Plates come in three sizes, bowls in two, and cups in two styles—short and tall.

Tableware may be used in the oven, removed and placed directly into the freezer without danger to the food or fear of harming the dish.

Reverse is also true. Dishes may be taken from the freezer and placed into a preheated oven.

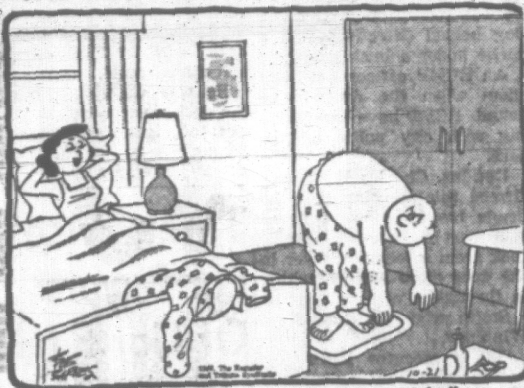

The new percolator is so smooth that stale oils cannot cling thus preventing the coffee from losing its pure flavor. It keeps the coffee hot and fresh for hours without reboiling and the automatic unit is completely removable for serving.

Also new is the electronic skillet with cover. Smart enough to be used right at the table, skillet gives you automatic, even-heat cooking and may be used under the broiler for quick top browning. Base may also be used as a plate warmer.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Forget Worries and Enjoy Beauty Provided By Nature

I love seasons! I love the change in weather, the change in clothes, the change in pace and mood, but I believe I love the flaming October best of all.

It is difficult for me to choose because I love snow on the evergreens and palm trees waving in seductive moonlight and I have been awed by the power of nature in thunder storms and hurricanes. You can tell that I have not lived in the same place all of the time and that I have loved it all.

Nature is not partial. She provides humans everywhere with comfort and stimulation if they are only aware of her. Every part of the country has its own special beauty. Yet many folks go about their daily lives completely heedless of their small or large worries and never really look about them. They miss the charm and excitement and restfulness of nature's panorama, and therefore fail to take advantage of the nearest thing we have to a fountain of youth. There is something rejuvenating about staying in close touch with these forces of life. No matter how many problems we may have or how many griefs come our way or how many disappointments or disillusionments we fall heir to there are some things we can always depend on.

There is the sunrise and the sunset. There is the moon and there are the flowers in spring. There are the birds and the lakes and the rivers. There are the oceans and the wonderful cloud formations and the frosted grass. The endless panorama of nature is always there.

During this lovely month I hope you have been walking a lot and have also been enjoying the outdoors.

SEW SIMPLE

By Eunice Farmer

Dear Readers: Recently we had a question on the unpleasant odor of raw silk when damp. Many thanks to all of you who were kind enough to send me your questions. A Japanese gal wrote and told me what she does with this kind of silk. Before cutting the fabric, she soaks it in a medium solution of vinegar and water (about 1/2 cup vinegar to 3 or 4 pints of water). This may have to be repeated several times.

This fabric is becoming more and more popular in this country because of its wearing qualities, its texture, ease in handling, and of course, its beauty. Hope this suggestion will help all of you who have written me.

Amateurs, Dentistry Don't Mix!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband loves to make things. He's made ceramic ash trays and candy dishes as pretty as anything you can buy in the stores. And he can fix anything. He's only been through sixth grade but I know if he had a do-it-yourself dental kit he could fix teeth. (Just mine and the kids—he wouldn't go into business or anything like that.) Are such kits available? I heard they were, but when I wrote to the mail order store they took it as a joke.

MRS. O. J. J.

DEAR MRS. O. J. J.: Skill in dentistry is acquired through years of study and practise. Don't be sore at the mail order house. There is no such "kit." Fortunately!

DEAR ABBY: "The noblest mother of them all" has always been, is now, and ever shall be, the girl who cares enough about her children to be before her children are conceived.

"KNEW ONE"

DEAR "KNEW ONE": Touche!

DEAR ABBY: My wife told me that she had been railroaded into the presidency of an organization at the second meeting she attended. She said she hadn't even paid her membership dues because she was not sure she wanted to join the club. She also said that when her name was brought up for president, she wasn't given a chance to say she didn't want it, but was voted in unanimously by a show of hands. I don't want her holding an office in any clubs as she has two pre-school children and two in school, which keeps her busy enough at home. She says she's afraid if she tells them she can't accept the presidency, her name will be mud in the community—which is all right with me. What do you think?

MUD'S HUSBAND.
DEAR HUSBAND: Tell your wife to write the organization a letter, explaining why she is unable to do justice to the office.

Fears of the contest to come were forgotten as farmers' wives and daughters gathered for this picture before the women's plowing match at the Dominion Experimental Farm, Saturday. They are, left to right, Mrs. Lawrie Patterson, Mrs.

Eddie Raper, Mrs. Bill Turner and her son, Stuart; Mrs. Vernon Michell, kneeling, Shirley Raper, (12); Marian McDowell, 15, and 13-year-old Joanna Holloway. Their fears proved groundless.

Women Plowers Sew a Mean Furrow

By PAT DUFOUR

Saanich farmers had better sharpen up their plow shares! A pioneer group of seven farmers' wives and daughters took up the challenge Saturday, and showed the men that there's really nothing to plowing a straight furrow.

It happened at the second annual plowing match of the Saanich Plowing Association, held at the Dominion Experimental Farm. This was the first time that the distaff side had been invited to show their prowess and they did it in true feminine style.

In fact, the winner, Mrs. W. C. Turner, didn't even interrupt her baby-sitting chores. She plowed her two-year-old son, Stuart, on her lap, settled herself comfortably, and trundled off for a spot of top-form plowing!

This was the first time she had tried her hand at plowing but she admits that she had used the family tractor to help her husband with the hay raking.

If the farmers received a jolt when they saw their women take this masculine chore in their stride, they have no one but themselves to blame.

All the married women who competed insist that they "were joed into it by their husbands."

Of the seven competitors, only two had been able to squeeze in a little practice before the event. Mrs. Eddie Raper had been allowed to "put in 20 minutes on Friday afternoon" and 13-year-old Joanna Holloway admitted that she often plowed a furrow or two on the East Saanich Road farm of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Holloway.

Marian McDowell, who placed second, was the first to mount the gas-driven tractor. Like most females, she seemed somewhat overwhelmed by the mechanical trimmings of the machine.

Looking at the array of knobs and levers, she shook her head and despaired. "I don't know how to start it!" The farmer audience stared quietly and waited. With a gulp, she found the choke, looked behind for the lever that would release the share when she began the furrow and started.

As the third-place winner, Shirley Raper, rumbled her tractor toward the starting spot, one oldest, leaning on his cane, looked around to his neighbors and warned:

"Woah! Move back and give her lots of room. We don't want any accidents."

There weren't any, in fact the female plowers appeared to be the most careful drivers on Vancouver Island.

Mrs. Vernon Michell tried to persuade her five-year-old son, Terry, to go along for moral support when she took her turn.

With trepidation, she explained, "We're just a bunch of greenhorns. My son knows a great deal more about it than I do."

But greenhorns or not, the wives and daughters showed the farmers that when it comes to plowing a straight line the female instinct for neatness is a quality that shouldn't be over-rated.

So, don't be surprised to see next season's plowing being taken over by the women of Saanich. The farmers are the first to admit that they have earned the right.

DOMINICANS RIOT AGAINST GOVERNMENT

SANTO DOMINGO (AP)—An anti-government rally turned into a free-swinging riot Sunday night as police used clubs and tear gas to break up the demonstration. It was the most serious outbreak in the Dominican Republic since the government of President Juan Bosch was overthrown in a military coup Sept. 25. Several policemen were injured.

University Aid Group Seeks Funds

OTTAWA (CPI)—The Canadian University Service Overseas, which sends graduate volunteers to work in developing countries overseas, decided Saturday to ask the federal government to shoulder half the cost. Aiming at 150 graduates or more in the field a year from now, CUSO approved a $250,000 fund-raising objective but a member of the executive committee said it will need federal help.

Dr. G. C. Andrew, also executive director of the Canadian Universities Foundation, said "we haven't a hope of getting that many people into the field without government support."

A resolution calling on the government to enter the program was passed without a dissenting voice.

U.S. Favors Veto on Spending For Big Dues Payers in UN

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—The United States is reported exploring the idea of giving the United Nations' big dues payers a veto in the General Assembly on spending for future peace-keeping operations like those in the Congo and the Middle East.

Informed sources said Harlan Cleveland, U.S. assistant secretary of state for international organization affairs, discussed the whole problem here last week with UN Secretary-General U Thant.

Thant, under an assembly resolution of last June 27, is to give the assembly recommendations before its Dec. 20 adjournment on how to improve "the financial procedures to be followed by the General Assembly at the time peace-keeping operations are authorized."

Since these forces were formed the assembly has authorized the secretary-general to spend fixed sums to keep them going and has assessed these sums among all UN members by percentages roughly in line with their ability to pay. It has done this through resolutions adopted by two-thirds vote.

A highly-placed U.S. source remarked recently that the present constitutional situation is "a trifle grotesque."

He said that even if the countries that must pay the most for a particular costly peace-keeping operation should oppose spending any money on it, the countries that must pay the least could commit them to it by two-thirds vote.

He said some arrangement should be worked out that would prevent the assembly from authorizing the assessing of any such expenditure "without the agreement of the main contributors." That would mean giving such contributors a veto of the financing of the peace-keeping operation in question.

The informant did not suggest any scheme to make this possible. But Britain came up with one last spring in a UN working group that studied the problem of financing peace-keeping forces.

Britain's argument was that if the cost of a peace-keeping operation rose above a certain level, "those relatively few states on whom most of the costs would fall could justly expect a greater say in the methods of financing to be adopted."

DIANA CHURCHILL ... inquest set

Churchill Daughter Dies Suddenly

LONDON (Reuters)—An inquest into the weekend death of Sir Winston Churchill's eldest daughter, Diana, 54, was ordered today.

The coroner for the Westminster district of London set the inquest date for Thursday after receiving post-mortem reports.

Mrs. Churchill—as she preferred to be called after her divorce from Duncan Sandys, colonial and Commonwealth secretary in Prime Minister Earl of Home's new cabinet—was found dead in her apartment.

It was understood she died there Saturday night. The death was not made public until Sunday night. Police said a doctor recorded death by natural causes.

At Sir Winston's London home today one of his secretaries confirmed the 89-year-old wartime prime minister has been told of his daughter's death.

The secretary added Sir Winston is "well."

The Daily Mail says a spokesman at Sir Winston's home reported the death "was very sudden," that "Mrs. Churchill had not been ill."

Mrs. Churchill was married to Sandys in 1935. They had three children.

The marriage ended in divorce in 1960, when Sandys was minister of aviation.

Her first marriage, in 1932, was to John Milner Bailey, eldest son of Sir Abe Bailey, South African millionaire. They were divorced in 1935.

MOOSE

Antlers Can Fool Hunters

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CPI)—That moose with the magnificent antlers probably isn't the battle-scarred old warrior you think he is.

In fact, he's probably a fledgling by comparison when it comes to counting the number of seasons he's managed to dodge a hunter's bullet.

Moose, like old men losing their teeth, lose the horn growth that bedecks them with massive antlers in their prime as old age stiffens their muscles, says Norman Patrick, biologist here with the Ontario lands and forests department.

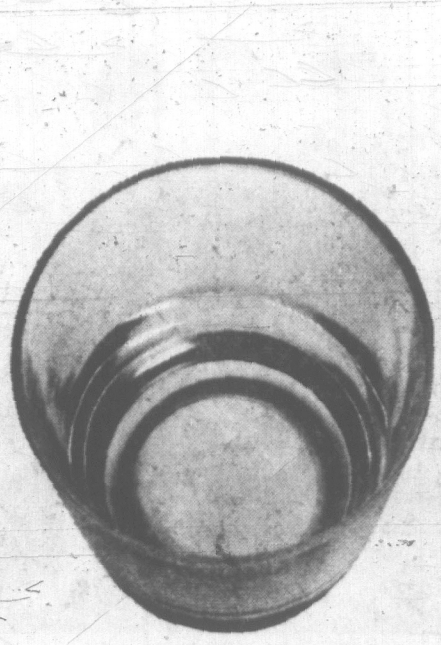

"Once moose have reached the peak of their development there is a decline in the vigor of the animal and this is reflected in antler growth."

Moose, which grow new antlers each year, reach their prime around eight years. A normal antler at this age spans 60 inches from left tip to right tip, rubbed shiny and smooth from constant polishing.

Old age comes around 12 years and as it encroaches, antlers diminish in length and span. Gauged and with fewer points, they thicken at the base and become heavier—a considerable burden for a hunter who regrettably bags an old one.

MIDDAY MEAL of cooked noodles is made possible for Korean children By Save Children Fund donations collected by V.I. children.

SAVE THE CHILDREN

Wanted: $5,000 To Buy 'Treats'

Halloween is fast approaching and for Canadian children that means trick or treat by the sackful.

But for Korean children their only treat will be a bowl of rice provided by the Save the Children Fund.

Since 1953, Victoria's local SCF representative, Mrs. W. W. McGill, has carried on a Halloween collection drive through the Sunday schools and youth groups of Vancouver Island. These children go knocking on doors for trick or treat but their donations all go towards providing care for children in Korea.

Since the first Halloween when these SCF cans appeared in Victoria boys and girls have collected $31,771.44.

BUILT HOMES

This money has helped to build a Beggar Boys' Home, Miss Hans Widows' and Orphans' Home, two orphanages, a waiting room at an outpatient clinic and a child relief and welfare centre in Pusan.

Three mid-wives have been trained and are still being supported by SCF. Millions of bowls of rice and tons of powdered milk have been provided and this year's money will also be used to buy more food.

$5,000 GOAL

Last year's total collection amounted to $4,493.37. This year's goal is $5,000.

SCF cans will be left inside the Mason Street door of First Baptist Church and must be picked up in the mornings of the 24th, 25th and 26th for distribution to Sunday schools on Oct. 27.

If any Sunday schools have been overlooked, or if they would like to borrow two 30-minute films on Korea, contact Mrs. McGill, EV 4-4803.

MEMORIAL ARENA

Black Watch Spectacle Here Tonight

The spectacle of royal pageantry, annually sought by tourists to England, will be showcased here tonight by the Pipes and Drums and Highland dancers of the Black Watch, Royal Highland Regiment.

More than 100 soldiers clad in the regiment's dark tartan and plumed bonnet will execute precision marching patterns and dances dating back to the 18th century on the floor of Memorial Arena, starting at 8:30.

SHARP CONTRAST

The pipers of the regiment will present a sharp contrast to the marchers as they are outfitted in bright red tartans.

Highlight of the evening will probably be the traditional victory rites in the form of highland dancing such as that displayed by the Black Watch after Waterloo and Berlin.

Scottish tunes and melodies which have become popular in Canada have also been included in the program.

Burma Seizes Firms

RANGOON (AP)—Burma's military government has nationalized the country's seven cigarette-manufacturing companies. It was the last segment of big business still in private hands. A cigarette company official declined to estimate the total value of the seven companies nationalized. The government has already nationalized all banks, import and export trade and other major industries.

Millworker Eight Hours Under Debris

VANCOUVER (CP)—James H. Robbins, 26-year-old steam engineer, was rescued early Sunday after being pinned eight hours beneath six feet of sawdust and log ends.

He was working alone on the night shift at the suburban Burnaby shingle mill when a mound of rubble shifted on top of him while he was feeding a boiler.

The millworker joked with firemen who finally dug him out, but collapsed when freed. He was taken to hospital where he was in fair condition.

Robbins said during the first two hours of imprisonment he expected to smother.

"I hoped it would be quick if I had to go," he said.

Then while pinned upright, he realized air was getting to him so "relaxed" and waited for rescue when the dayshift came on in the morning.

SOLUTION WEDNESDAY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other attractive prizes? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 10-cent prize and the second questioner a 5-cent prize.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of World Book Encyclopedia to Jane Devine, age 10, of Georgetown, Ind., for her question:

How does a rose get its scent?

A pint of rich perfume costs hundreds of dollars, yet most of its ingredients are made from air, water and common chemicals in the soil. Scientists can imitate the scents of some flowers, but plants still make the best perfumes with their own secret recipes. What's more, it is no easy job to capture and preserve these sweet scents, which is why good perfume is so costly.

The perfume of a rose is manufactured by a secret recipe right inside the rose tree. Like all green plants, the rose tree needs only air and sunshine, water and chemicals from the soil to make a living. It uses no more than these common ingredients to grow its woody stems and its green leaves, its spiky thorns and satin-smooth flowers. The same basic ingredients are used to color and perfume the glamorous roses.

Perfume Costly to Make

Rose perfume is an oily chemical, so strong that a drop is enough to scent 100 flowers. It is stored in tiny pockets among the fine cells which make the satiny petals. This rich oil tends to evaporate in the air.

A fading rose has a sickly odor, for its perfume is made to last but a short while. Perfume makers must preserve the fragrance of fresh roses. The job requires patient work and skillful know-how—as well as expensive ingredients, such as musk or ambergris. This explains why bottled perfume is so costly, though it is made from such common items as air and water.

Andy sends a World Book Atlas to Marilyn Hurrell, age 14, of Neepawa, Man., Canada, for her question:

How do we measure height above sea level?

The surface of the sea is higher in some places than in others; what's more, it heaves up and down with every tide. Sea level is the average level of the ocean based on countless readings. The land is measured in feet above sea level. It is possible to figure the height of a peak from the length of its shadow, but usually altitude is measured with an altimeter.

This gadget measures air pressure, which becomes less and less as we rise above the earth. Standard air pressure at sea level is 14.697 pounds over each square inch. It decreases at a rate which can be figured on a scale. If the altimeter shows 7.35 pounds of air pressure, then the mountain peak we are measuring is three and a half miles above sea level.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — Janis Paige was one of those blonde, bosomy, sexy starlets who was never going to get there—who is there.

While Janis is singing and cavorting these nights at the Shubert in 'Here's Love,' the Meredith Willson musical about Santa Claus, there are women who nudge their husbands and say: 'Too bad you didn't get to catch her in 'The Caretakers.' She should get an Oscar.'

'They took a big gamble on me,' Janis commented one midnight recently at La Scala, after she'd done her smooching and singing with Craig Stevens. For the moment she was discussing the movie, about the 'borderlines,' the mentally disturbed who are not violent and are treated by group therapy. She plays Marion, one of the borderlines.

'It sounds like a role that Shelley Winters should have played instead of you,' I said. 'Yes—but she didn't—fortunately for me,' Janis said. 'One of the critics said I was too sane,' she went on. 'I wanted to write and tell him that when you sit in the wards and talk to them, you realize that they don't climb walls; they appear to be sane. It's fascinating what a fine line we all walk.'

'This woman I play was a compulsive nymphomaniac, based on a terribly sad childhood. She was illegitimate. She never heard her name till she was seven. At the end, she just slipped.'

WENT TO WARDS
'I sat in the wards and listened to some of the patients at Norwalk, Cal., before I did the part. I talked to some of them. 'This woman that the author asked me to play was not in his book. He was so impressed with her that he wrote this part in, and he wanted me to do it—against a lot of opposition... I hope she's complete.'

Janis added, 'There were things in my own life I used.'

In 'Here's Love,' she's the young divorcee sure that the neighbor, a handsome ex-Marine, is really interested in her rather than her eight-year-old daughter whom he takes to the Thanksgiving Day parade. She shoots at him to get lost.

Janis is still a young shapely gal even though she has been around 'more than somewhat' as our idol Damon Runyon used to say, and who had much acting experience.

Today she and her third husband, Ray Gilbert, the Hollywood composer and arranger, live happily on Central Park West and go walking on Fifth Avenue late at night when he's in town. He has crossed the continent a couple of dozen times this year to be with her while she rehearsed an finally opened in this show.

Janis can draw on a lot of background when she steps on that stage—there were the starlet days at Warners, then she was a star in 'Hollywood Canteen,' then night clubs and many a tour with Bob Hope, and later her own TV show, 'Always Jan.'

Though she's always sung, Janis sings with a slightly different voice in this show—'a little more rangy,' she says.

WEEKEND WINDUP...

Cassius Clay gave a waiter at Cooper's a $10 tip and told him, 'Bet it on me against Liston'... Sid Caesar, who's in 'Mad Mad World,' says it's 'so mad that Milton Berle plays the love interest'... Joe Levine flew to H'wood to see 'The Carpetbaggers,' flew back hours later... Veteran comic Bert Wheeler says kidding that he got a wire from the Lambs: 'The telegram committee has voted six to four to wish you success in your engagement at the Latin Quarter.'

Don Rickles is busy—dating Connie Francis in L.A. and phoning singer Jo Ann Miller here at the Westchester Dinner Theatre... Now you can swap trading stamps for a night on the town—four local cafes have signed with a stamp company... Jockey Bill Hartack's managing the career of singer Patti Holland.

Frank Sinatra's gift to Dean Martin: A motorcycle... Singer Buddy Greco has 400 Gs in bookies lined up (via agent Joe Glaser)... Louis Nye made movies with Lee Remick and Romy Schneider, and sighed, 'Up till now I thought life's greatest thrill was owning your own two-wheel bike.'

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: Tuffy Tuttle reports she had insomnia so she bought sleeping pills. Now she stays awake thinking—of how expensive they were.

WISH I'D SAID THAT: A man goes on vacation to wear his old clothes—a woman, to show off her new ones.—Harold Coffin.

REMEMBERED QUOTE: 'Doctors think a lot of patients are cured who have simply quit in disgust.'—Don Harold.

EARL'S PEARLS: Marriage is an expensive way to learn that it isn't true about two living as cheaply as one.

Anglican Peace Corps Organized

BANFF, Alta. (CP)—The Anglican church in Canada will set up its own youthful 'Peace Corps.' It was announced last week.

The new look for church missions was outlined for 200 delegates attending the church's executive council meeting.

A statement said that for the first time the church will accept young men and women for short-term volunteer mission assignments throughout the world.

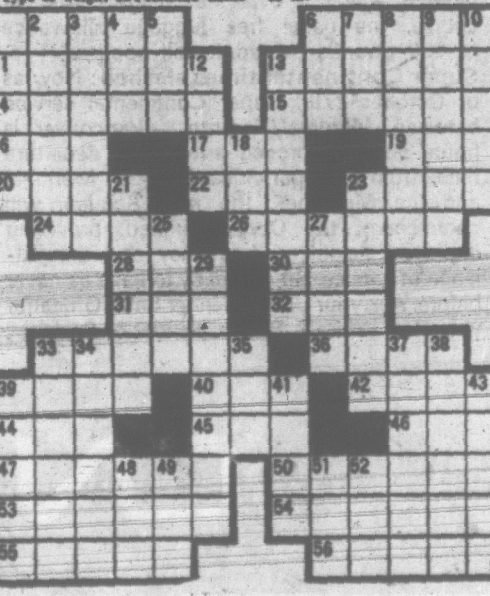

The missionary society had been restricted to long-term training and post of missionaries, and was unable to accept volunteer services of doctors, teachers and nurses.

It was also announced that special internship will be used for the first time to train church workers going to work among Canadian Indians.

More than 7,200 junior and senior high school students in B.C. participate in the annual Forestry Essay Contest, conducted by Canadian Forestry Association for Council of the Forest Industries of B.C.

FACE AND FIGURE GOOD AS EVER

Pin-Up Queen Still Makes the Joint Jump

By JAMES BACON
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Betty Grable's still got it.

The shapely blonde, a favorite pin-up queen of troops in the Second World War, recently completed a two-week engagement as Miss Adelaide in Guys and Dolls at Melodyland Theatre out by Disneyland.

The chorus girls in the show were all in the 18-23 age bracket and shapely as only chorus girls can be.

Betty makes her opening entrance in the midst of all this fresh, young talent.

But Betty, dressed in skin tight capri pants, even made the young chorus girls stare—and the bald-headed row started whistling and stamping its feet.

Later she did skimpy costume numbers with the same chorus girls and not a one could top her figure. Facially, she looks great—as only Betty Grable can. So why isn't she doing movies? She was the movie box office queen for years.

MORE FUN NOW
"This is more fun," says Betty. "I've got nothing more to prove in the movies."

"I spent half my life getting up at 5 a.m. to sweat out song and dance routines all day long, and then collapse in bed at night—with only the makeup and hairdressing call to look forward to the next dawn."

"Now I work at night and sleep late in the mornings. To me, it's the greatest luxury in the world."

Betty, of course, is the perfect Miss Adelaide.

"When Bill Goetz first bid for the movie rights, he wanted me for the part—and Clark Gable as Sky Masterson. Then Sam Goldwyn outbid Bill and got the rights."

"He wanted to see me about the role one day but I couldn't make it because one of my dogs took ill."

"You know Sam, he couldn't take that for an excuse so I never did get to talk to him about the part."

"I played it eight months in Las Vegas—and now here, I love the role and I guess I'll be playing it again."

"But not with 5 a.m. makeup calls."

National Theatre Ready for U.K. Debut

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain's new National Theatre—a controversial project which has been in the discussion stage for more than a century—makes its debut next week.

British theatre-goers will get their first taste of state-sponsored drama on Tuesday with Sir Laurence Olivier, director of the National Theatre, directing its maiden production of Shakespeare's Hamlet.

It will take place in London's Old Vic Theatre, traditional home of Shakespearean productions in London this century.

It will be the temporary home of the National Theatre until a new building is completed in about four years.

The theatre will have a permanent staff of 50 or 60 actors and actresses. More than 30 of them, including some impressive names, have now been assembled.

WILL RECEIVE GRANT

The theatre will be financed by a government grant of £1,000,000 ($3,000,000) with a subsidy of £130,000 ($390,000) and it will share in a London county council allocation of £1,300,000 ($3,900,000) for a national theatre and opera house.

The South Bank Theatre and Opera House Board is known to be divided: between those who favor a modernistic theatre and those who want a more traditional design.

There is also the problem whether the theatre should have a conventional "picture frame" stage or the non-proscenium style with the audience partially or entirely surrounding the actors.

Defining the National Theatre's policy, Sir Laurence said its scope would be international.

"We aim to give a spectrum of world drama and to develop in time a company which will be the finest in the world," he said.

Chilliwack Man Noses Out Keating Farmer at Plowing

(See also page 15)

The plowmen plodded their weary way homeward but they were a happy crew.

They had just completed a good day of competition at the Saanich Plowing Association's second annual matches at the Dominion Experimental Farm at Saanichton.

Twelve events were presented in the day-long tournament Saturday, and much praise went to the experimental farm superintendent Harry Anderson and his staff for their co-operation.

There were 296 paid admissions and many donations from feed stores, oil companies and businesses of Sidney and Victoria, and secretary-treasurer Al Barker reported financial success.

BETTER NEXT YEAR

"It means we should be able to stage a bigger and better tournament next year," said association president Joe Saville of Sidney who, with director Eddie Raper, of Saanichton, did much of the spade work for the show.

There was keen interest in all events, with the crowd finally moving to the championship class which was the last to finish. There were four contestants in this event which was judged under international plowing competition rules.

In this contest two-furrow trailer plows are used and a tape measure is an important part of the equipment. Furrows must be even in depth and straightness and adjustments are forever being made in the plows to stay on the straight and narrow.

Filmland Museum Building Started

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Hollywood celebrities took part Sunday in the groundbreaking for the $14,000,000 Hollywood Museum. The museum — a Los Angeles County facility — will house memorabilia of famous films, radio and television programs and their stars. Ronald Russell was mistress of ceremonies. The first ground was turned by Richard Powell, 11, son of the late Dick Powell.

Pope's Home Shot Up

BRESCIA, Italy (AP)—Two volleys from a bird gun tore a hole Sunday in the wooden gate of the house at nearby Concesio where Pope Paul VI was born. Police said road markers in the area, pointing out the house where the Pope was born 66 years ago as Giovanni Battista Montini, and the church where he was baptized also appeared to have been hit by bird-hunting rifles. Police believed it was the work of vandals or drunkards.

When marks were totalled on the crown of the land, (20 points), straightness (15 points), covering of the weeds (15 points), firmness and packing (20 points), general appearance (10 points) and finish (20 points) this is how the four were ranked:

J. J. Andrews of Chilliwack, an international competitor who was at the Canadian championships earlier in the month, was first; Wally Mar, a young Chinese Canadian farmer of Keating, who attended the world matches as a spectator and returned home just in time for the matches Saturday morning, was a close second; Joe Saville, the association president of Sidney was third, and Johnny Watt of Duncan was fourth.

Top marks of the day went to a young Cowichan Station plowman, Fred Barton, who was the only under 18 plowman using a trailer plow.

SEVEN COMPETE

Biggest class was the under 18 two-plow mounted class which saw seven boys cutting the land. It was won by Wally Mar's young brother Doug and in second place was Greg Baker of Mount Douglas. Third place went to Phillip Holloway of East Saanich.

The senior two-plow mounted class was won by David Allen with Pat Hoole, Sr., second.

Pat Hoole, Jr., won the senior single plow event with his 1921 Centaur two-cylinder "monster," which attracted much attention as it chugged to victory.

In the under 18 three-plow mounted division the winner was Bruce Wilson of Sidney with Fred Poulson second.

The one-plow under 18 event was won by Wayne Jordan of Keating with Conrad Wohlers and Z. DeWitt, both of Duncan, second and third respectively.

OLD-TIMERS

There was an event on the program for businessmen but no "greenhorns" were willing to try their hand. So, instead, officials changed the event to an old-timers' class. Eighty-two-year-old Alex Turner of Goldstream won a prize as the oldest plowman and Tom Lewis, 67, the best furrow among the over-70 plowmen. Youngest "plowman" was 12-year-old Shirley Raper, who also placed third in the "ladies' class."

The ladies' event was won by Mrs. Bill (Donna) Turner of Sayward Beach and second was 15-year-old Marian McDowell of Metehosin.

In another crowd-pleaser, Jaydie Wright of Saanichton took top place in the horse-plowing contest with his team of Clydesdales.

Also in the "horse" class, Jimmy Brooks of Crofton entertained with a demonstration of plowing with a team of four Shetland ponies.

Tories Discuss Strategy

VANCOUVER (UPI)—Defeated B.C. Conservative leader E. Davie Fulton and about 30 other unsuccessful candidates in the Sept. 30 provincial election met here during the weekend to plan future party strategy.

Provincial association president Cecil Merritt said it was the first of several organizational meetings. "Only the beginning of our drive to put the Conservatives back into the provincial government."

Merritt said the meeting discussed the re-organization of the Conservative youth organization, and added, "It was a 'hair-letting-down' time."

"We concluded with the conviction that we are a pretty good bunch — but there just aren't enough of us," he said.

Fulton returned to his home in Kamloops Sunday.

Teacher Strike Ends

EDMONTON (CP) — Settlement was announced Saturday night in the strike of 230 teachers in Strathcona County on Edmonton's southeastern boundary. The teachers, who walked out Oct. 9 in support of a demand for higher wages, closed 20 schools and 4,000 students missed eight days of classes.

Railway Dream At End of Line

VANCOUVER (CP)—The remains of two long-dead railways will be exhumed for the last time at the next session of the British Columbia legislature. Then they'll be buried.

The two are the Vancouver, Victoria and Eastern Railway and Navigation Company, formed in 1897, and the Nelson and Fort Sheppard Railway, founded in 1891.

Both lines were absorbed by the Great Northern Railway, a U.S. transcontinental carrier, which plans to ask the legislature to dissolve both companies so they can be removed from the firm's books.

Five men founded the VVE and their dream was to carry supplies from Vancouver to Rossland, 300 miles to the east, to support the thousands of men hunting for gold in the area.

The company, declared a railway under the Federal Railway Act in 1898, also planned a system of trains, steamers, ferries and wharfs on a route from New Westminster, B.C., to Wash., on the U.S. border.

The closest railway came to being an entity was the appearance of some rolling stock on rail lines in B.C. In 1908 it was acquired by Great Northern and a line was built from New Westminster to the U.S. border.

The service to Rossland was provided by the Canadian Pacific Railway.

The Nelson and Fort Sheppard line was also founded by a group of five, all B.C. pioneers. Its assets, which included some rolling stock and a number of stern-wheeled passenger and cargo boats on lakes in the southern B.C. interior, were also taken over by Great Northern shortly after 1900.

Both railways died in the fierce race by Great Northern and the CPR to service southern British Columbia. They were just two of several railways in the province that died before they were born.

Greenland Starting Self-Support Plan

GODTHAAB, Greenland (Reuters)—Denmark has launched a development program aimed at turning its former Arctic colony, Greenland, into a self-supporting island with a living standard as high as that of Denmark itself.

In seeking an economic basis for the project, the Danish administration pinned its main hope on fishing the rich waters between Greenland and Newfoundland, with tourism a possibility and yet - undiscovered mineral wealth a long - shot chance.

Kept as a closed colony for years, when the government's main objective was to spend as little as possible on it, the big Arctic island now is a part of Denmark itself. It was incorporated in the country by constitutional amendment in 1953.

Last year Denmark invested nearly $25,000,000 in the world's biggest island. Most of the money went providing bases for industries and improving harbors and roads. New schools are being built or planned.

Danish administrators stressed that there were more than enough jobs to be done on the 1,000,000-square-mile island, where the longest stretch of tarred road at present is a six-mile airstrip at the Soendre Stroemfjord airfield.

Superficially, there was little to show for the amount of money Denmark put into Greenland since the new "development" policy was evolved by the government in 1953. Spokesmen for the administration explained that the high cost of working in the Arctic is largely responsible.

Greenland has no trees. Every piece of timber used for building, for making fish cases, or for any other purpose has to be imported.

While a few private businesses have opened in the larger Greenland towns, most business, from deep-freezing and canning fish and shrimps to selling toothpaste, is still handled by the Greenland trade department.

Interest Growing In Indians

Canadians are increasingly interested in the culture and problems of their native Indians, it was reported at a recent meeting of the B.C. Indian Arts and Welfare Society here.

Miss Elizabeth Pragnell, president, told of a 10-day seminar she attended at the University of Saskatchewan.

Mrs. D. M. Cox, chairman of the Local Council of Women's study group on Indians, surveyed the topics to be studied by all provincial Councils of Women following a course planned by the extension department at UBC.

Arthur Gillan, emergency welfare committee chairman, told how the society has been working with the city welfare department on Indian problems.

A mask specially carved by Tony Hunt was entrusted to D. R. MacLaren to be taken to the annual meeting of the Indian-Eskimo Association as a gift from the society.

MURPHY TO RUN AGAIN FOR SAANICH POST

Saanich Reeve Stanley Murphy says he will run for reeve again in December.

So far he is the only candidate.

"I find the work extremely challenging, and I intend to pursue it," he says.

Reeve Murphy served four years as a councillor before being elected to a two-year term as reeve.

Three council seats are to be filled in the December election, those of Coun. Robert Ostler, who has moved to Powell River, Coun. Hugh Curtis, and Coun. Gregory Cook.

Councillors Curtis and Cook both said they will seek re-election.

Councillors Joseph Casey, Leslie Passmore and Harold Todd all have one more year to serve.

LEGS CUT OFF IN RACE

Boat Mutilates Swimmer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A fishing boat skimmed through a racing field of 11 trans-bay swimmers Sunday and ran down amateur swimming champion James Small, 27.

He lost both legs and his left thumb and was in critical condition today in hospital.

San Francisco Swimming Club officials blamed the U.S. Coast Guard for not patrolling the bay's racing lane but the coast guard said it had no obligation to supply patrol boats. It planned a thorough investigation of the accident.

Small's left leg was sheared off above the knee by the 22-inch blades of the propeller of the fishing boat, Pacific Dawn. His right leg, hanging by a shred of skin, was amputated above the knee; so was the thumb of his shattered left hand, but doctors said they thought they could save his hand.

Wolf Mauls Child

MOOSE JAW (CP)—A wolf at the Moose Jaw wild animal park Saturday mauled a five-year-old boy who wandered too near the wire mesh enclosure. Dean Miller of Steilacum, Sask., was taken to hospital with severe lacerations on one arm.

New low fares enable everyone to see Canada from a scenic dome.

2881 miles of train travel for $43

Read how Canadian Pacific's FARESAVER PLAN makes train travel incredibly inexpensive 7 days a week—even on The Canadian Starting Oct. 27th you can travel nearly 3000 miles on one of the world's great trains for $43. And you can do it any day of the week. This is just an example of the economy of the FARESAVER PLAN. And it applies across Canada on Canadian Pacific.

How the plan works:

If you travel over 520 miles you enjoy low fares 7 days a week. (We show some sample fares below).

If you travel under 520 miles the lower fares are in effect 5 days a week (fares are slightly higher Fridays and Sundays for travel under 520 miles).

That's the plan. Now look at what it gives you on The Canadian.

The Canadian, one of the world's great trains!

The Canadian is a destination itself. It's the only train in Canada with Scenic Domes, soft music to travel by, and reclining coach seats with full-length leg rests.

Seats in Coaches are reserved without charge, and porter service is provided. The Canadian also features refreshment lounges, coffee shops and dining rooms as well as a wide choice of accommodation. It offers adventure, fun, relaxation and rest. The Canadian travels daily between Montreal/Toronto and Vancouver. Check the fares below and plan a trip. Indians Pledged To Fight

By HUMPHRY DAVY

TOFINO — Descendants of the famous seafaring Nootkan nation pledged themselves to fight for the betterment of all B.C. Indians at a historic meeting of the West Coast Allied Tribes held at this west coast fishing village Saturday.

The meeting was attended by 40 delegates, mostly chiefs, representing 14 tribes which historically belong to the Nootkan confederate which once occupied the whole of the west coast of Vancouver Island.

They belonged to such tribes as the Kyuquot, Nuchatlait, Ehattesant, Nootka, Hesquiat, Ahousat, Clayoquot, Ucluelet, Toquait, Ohiet, Nitnaht, She-shahit, Opetchesant and Unuklesant.

These tribal names though mostly unfamiliar to the present generation were well known to the early fur traders, navigators and settlers along the West Coast.

Proud, Brave

Their members were proud, brave and fierce in war.

But the delegates at the meeting bore no resemblance to their forefathers who wore gorgeous sea otter fur blankets and hunted whales in the canoes, armed only with spears and bow and arrows.

The majority of delegates were in their 40s and 50s, smartly dressed, schooled in the ways of the white man and conscious of growing social and economic problems facing their people.

They came to Tofino by plane, cars and fishing boats—all intent on improving the lot of the coming generation and promoting a better understanding between themselves and non-Indians.

Four Requests

They decided to press both federal and provincial governments for the following:

• Facilities for the vocational training of young Indians.

• Improvements in medical and public health services.

• Establishment of a federal-land-claims commission to settle disputes over ownership of lands claimed by Indians and non-Indians.

• Construction of roads to occupied Indian reservations to enable Indians to make better use of their lands and improve their properties.

Work Together

Addressing the gathering of chiefs, Guy Williams, president of the Native Brotherhood of British Columbia, stressed the importance of co-operation between the tribes.

The Brotherhood represents some 40,000 British Columbia Indians.

"Co-operation and a united front are necessary if we are to achieve anything," he said.

He said one of the basic problems facing Indians is education for children.

Without a proper education, he warned, Indians of the coming generation would not be able to get jobs.

Too Many Deaths

A need for improvements to the Indian health service was also stressed by the speaker, who said "infant mortality among the Indian population is still too high."

Alec Masso, Kyuquot, complained that destitute Indians are leaving the reserve to go to the cities because of delays in receiving welfare benefits from the Indian agency. There they had no trouble receiving benefits.

But, he added, many of these people get into trouble in the cities because they are lonely and don't know what to do.

Speed Them Up

"I don't think this is right," he said. "Something should be done to step up payments of benefits so that our unemployed won't leave the reserve," he said.

The meeting was chaired by Jack Peter, of Alberni, 66-year-old chief of the Ohiet Tribe. He was assisted by Philip Louis, of Ahousat, vice-president of the Allied Tribes.

REV. WILLIAM RICKABY
... no time for loneliness

WHY QUIT NOW? ASKS MISSIONARY

By HUMPHRY DAVY

CLO-OOSE—Veteran United Church missionary William Rickaby, who turned 75 this year, won't trade his backwoods-man life for all the amenities and comforts of city living.

The minister, a bachelor, lives at the isolated Nitinat Indian village of Clo-oose on the west coast of Vancouver Island, about 100 miles north of Victoria.

There are no roads to Clo-oose. It is only accessible by air or boat via the open Pacific or the 12-mile-long Nitinat Lake.

Although long past retirement age, he says he is satisfied to continue with such chores as cutting his own wood, pumping water from his well, mending his own clothes and canning food for the long winter months.

Nor does he find it irksome to read at night by gas lamp or to be dependent on Indian canoes for transport to various Indian reserves on nearby Nitinat Lake.

SAILED ON PACIFIC
The minister owns his own dugout and has frequently sailed in the open Pacific in the native craft.

"There's no safer small craft once you know how to handle it," he said. "Its big drawback is its weight. It's not an easy boat to lug around on shore."

Mr. Rickaby moved to Clo-oose in 1936 when there was a small white settlement alongside the Indian reserve.

Since then the settlement has died, leaving himself and Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Ordway the only inhabitants in the Clo-oose district. Members of the Nitinat band, however, still occupy their ancient village site.

PLENTY TO DO

Asked if he gets lonely, the minister looked up as if he didn't understand the meaning of the word.

"I have no time for that," he said. "There's always plenty to do."

His hobbies are gardening and photography. The latter he likes most, and one of his pleasures when he pays occasional visits to Victoria and Vancouver is to show his colored slides.

He is fond of Indian people and has acquired a taste for their native dishes, such as baked or fried salmon roe. Mr. Rickaby has chalked

Poisoning of Bass Asked by Sportsmen

NANAIMO—The Nanaimo Fish and Game Club Saturday asked the provincial government to poison bass in Long Lake so it can be stocked with trout.

The club said that unless this is done, bass now in the lake will spread to other lakes and streams.

Special Group To Head Off Delinquents

DUNCAN — A special committee, chaired by Trustee Mrs. Isobel Tarlton, has been set up here to deal with "potentially troublesome" school children.

The committee, which will work under the Cowichan District School Board, includes a public health nurse, the probation officer, a welfare official, the superintendent of schools and a school principal.

Superintendent of schools Art Jones said the school district is not large enough to warrant the employment of a special counsellor.

The committee will also work to assist and reclaim delinquent cases, but its chief function will be in a preventive capacity.

"GREAT VALUE"

"The committee's work can be of great value to the community," Mr. Jones said. "Its formation had been considered for some time and more recently all agencies involved realized many problems can be successfully dealt with in mutual co-operation."

The committee will meet once a month, and all school principals will be encouraged to participate and submit cases of sufficient importance for study and analysis.

Agreement Reached on Reduction Herring

VANCOUVER (CP) — The committee representing the United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union (Ind.) and the Fisheries Association of British Columbia reached agreement Saturday on the 1963-64 price of reduction herring.

Homer Stevens, the union's general secretary, said both parties accepted an increase to $12.40 per ton from last year's $11.40 per ton.

He said the agreement came after two weeks of negotiations between an eight-man committee representing the fisheries association and a 10-member union committee.

The price of reduction herring—fish used primarily for livestock meal and oil purposes—is negotiated on a year-to-year basis. The 1962-63 contract expired Oct. 15.

Mr. Stevens said 71.7 per cent of the union members voted in favor of the terms earlier.

"The price of reduction herring has gone downhill since 1950," he said. "If hit the bottom in 1960 when we were paid $8.80 per ton. We're satisfied with this year's contract—it brings us to within 85 cents of the 1956 price."

The new contract will be signed Monday. It will include a clause that the $12.40 price be retroactive to Oct. 13.

U.S. Ships Abroad New Nuclear Artillery

WASHINGTON (AP)—Additional modern artillery, including nuclear missiles and rockets, are going to Europe and the Pacific to build up battlefield strength of the ground forces, the U.S. Army announced today.

It said that additional sergeant missiles—nuclear weapons with a range of about 75 miles—are being stationed in Europe.

The army also said it is deploying an improved version of the Honest John rocket, with a range of 15 to 20 miles, and "larger numbers of nuclear warheads" for the eight-inch howitzer artillery.

'STATE OF EMERGENCY' FOR CONGO CAPITAL

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP)—Premier Cyrille Adoula clamped a state of emergency on the Congolese capital of Leopoldville Sunday night in an attempt to checkmate a general strike threat.

A form of martial law was imposed and special military courts will try offenders.

Leaders of The Congo's labor union federations had set midnight Tuesday night as the deadline for Adoula to accept their demands for a "government of public safety" or face a general strike.

SUGAR PRICE REACHES NEW HIGH

MONTREAL (CP)—Sugar prices today hit their highest level since July, 1920, when three major sugar refineries—St. Lawrence, Canada and Dominion and Atlantic—announced an increase of $1.10 in the wholesale price of refined sugar bringing it to 17.85 a 100-pound bag.

The price in July, 1920, reached $24 a 100-pound bag when the market was hit by a shortage and speculation set in.

The reason for today's increase, said one refinery spokesman, was a sharp increase in world sugar prices.

PRICE UP THEN DOWN

VANCOUVER (CP)—One of Canada's largest sugar refineries today boosted the wholesale price of sugar and an hour later lopped off the increase.

Sugar prices are "just too damn high," said Alan M. Robertson, senior vice-president of British Columbia Sugar Refining Company, after announcing the price cut.

He added that unless "something drastic" happens the company is going to hold prices at their present level.

EIGHT BOXCARS

3 Injured In PGE Plunge

VANCOUVER (CP)—Three crewmen were injured early today when eight boxcars of a Pacific Great Eastern Railway freight train plunged over an embankment near Britannia Beach, about 15 miles north of here.

The boxcars crashed down a steep slope, stopping short of the choppy waters of Howe Sound. Six diesel-electric units hauling the northbound, 109-car freight also jumped the tracks, but remained upright.

Railway officials were conducting an investigation to determine the cause of the mishap. Conductor Joseph Pakulak of North Vancouver suffered neck injuries and at least temporary paralysis when he was hurled across the caboose by the impact.

The accident occurred about 1:20 a.m. near Mile 20, about three miles south of Britannia Beach, as heavy rains and high winds battered the Howe Sound area.

Railway officials at first said the train had hit a slide, but later said investigators at the scene had not determined the definite cause of the mishap. The train was carrying general merchandise to northern B.C., including equipment for the Peace River power project.

Officials said the track was badly damaged in the derailment, but full estimate of damage and how long it will take to repair it was not known.

UN REJECTS RED CHINA BID FOR SEAT

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—The United Nations General Assembly today rejected a move to seat Communist China in the place of Nationalist China in the world today.

Fifty-seven, including Canada and the United States, voted against it while 12 nations abstained.

The navy announced that the 1,400-ton Fogg appeared to be riding out the storm. The coast guard Chilula was expected to reach the decommissioned vessel and its skeleton crew by mid-afternoon and attempt to take her under tow again was due when the weather subsided.

The coast guard had reported seas were running 40 to 50 feet in the vicinity of the drift-destroyer-escort.

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet government newspaper Izvestia today announced the departure of a trade delegation for the United States.

EXCEPT IF YOU'RE INDIAN

No Discrimination Here!

CALGARY (CP)—A Calgary family, which has had its lawn littered with garbage twice since moving here from Vancouver, found a vulgar word painted in bright red on the side of their home.

James Garner, former University of British Columbia instructor, said Saturday the four-letter word was noticed first by his six-year-old son. The boy didn't know what it meant.

Mr. Garner, a part Indian, and his Indian wife, moved to Calgary's Mount Royal district on July after being hired by the Glenbow Foundation, which gathers historical data of the early west.

Mr. Garner said about two weeks ago he found garbage on his front lawn and Thursday both the side lawn and the front lawn were covered with more rubbish. He said he thought it was thrown from a car.

Mrs. Garner said they were upset about the incident, but felt that it couldn't be discrimination. The house has been placed under special surveillance by police.

The Garners said they had the same trouble in Vancouver, where windows in their house were repeatedly smashed.

Mr. Douglas said the SIU members had "dodged" the fact that the other four unions to be put under trusteeship had accepted it.

Mr. Heinekey replied that those unions had stood back and

CRITIC GOT NO ARGUMENT FROM HAL

OTTAWA (CP)—It wasn't all cheers and applause for Hal C. Banks as he met members of his Seafarers' International Union of Canada on Parliament Hill.

As he left The Hill briefly, one Ottawa citizen—separated by an iron fence—called out: "Banks, you're a . . . damned crook."

Mr. Banks chuckled and shot back: "I agree with you."

HAL BANKS
... 'a great guy'

'Like a General Reviewing His Troops'

By ALEX YOUNG
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Burlly Hal Banks, the man denounced by a royal commission as a thug and leader of a hoodlum empire, today marched freely about Parliament Hill like a general reviewing his troops.

And he had between 2,000 and 3,000 "troops" behind him—Seafarers' International Union members who had walked off their jobs, most of them from the Lakes and St. Lawrence Seaway, to protest the impending trusteeship to be imposed on their union by the government.

Everywhere Banks went—over the expansive lawns or up the stairs below the Peace Tower—the crowd gave way like wheat in the wind. Hal was apparently king.

'WE WANT HAL'

"There's big Hal," cried eager placard-carriers. "We want Hal," they chanted as the smiling Banks, hat set back on his head, strode along, looking like an imitation of Broderick Crawford seeking a culprit.

Every once in a while, "Hal" would stop and shake hands with a seaman or a group of seamen, exchanging small talk and smiles.

"What a great guy," some of these SIU members would remark at his departing back as he moved on to review his men in other areas.

Douglas Hits Back At Union Official

OTTAWA (CP)—In a face-to-face meeting today New Democratic Leader T. C. Douglas told angry members of the Seafarers' International Union, Ind., that their union "long ago ceased to be a democratically-run union."

One SIU member shouted at him that members of the union hadn't had any say in the government move to impose a trusteeship on the SIU and four other maritime unions.

"We haven't been allowed a voice," he said.

"You're sure haven't—not in your union," Mr. Douglas shot back.

The confrontation took place in the midst of a crowd in front of the Parliament Buildings where SIU members were protesting the trusteeship bill.

Mr. Douglas spoke to one man from the constituency—Alfred Poole—but most of his talk was with Rod Heinekey, SIU vice-president for the west coast.

CAME ON OWN HOOK

Mr. Poole said he had fought against dictatorship in the Second World War and he was prepared to fight against it in front of Parliament now. He said 15,000 SIU members had come to Ottawa on their own hook—not at the orders of SIU president Hal Banks.

Mr. Douglas replied: "If you give officers control of hiring halls and do-not-show lists, it's not very hard for them to keep control of the union membership."

Mr. Douglas said the SIU members had "dodged" the fact that the other four unions to be put under trusteeship had accepted it.

Mr. Heinekey replied that those unions had stood back and

SIU Members March on Hill

OTTAWA (CP)—The march on Parliament by the Seafarers' International Union of Canada was ended at mid-afternoon today by order of Hal C. Banks.

But the instructions by the burly SIU president indicated that the walkout by union members—termed an illegal strike by the government—will continue for Tuesday at least.

Speaking to SIU lieutenants in front of the Parliament Buildings about three hours after the demonstration began, Mr. Banks said the union members were not to return to their ships.

"Report to the closest hall. Then we'll hold a meeting and decide what we're going to do."

Mr. Banks told a reporter that the meetings in the SIU's union halls would be held tonight and Tuesday.

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson said today the government's trusteeship legislation over five maritime unions will be proclaimed without delay.

He made the statement to reporters in a corridor of the East Block of the Parliament Buildings while outside on Parliament Hill hundreds of members of the Seafarers' International Union (Ind.), carrying banners, protested in orderly fashion against the legislation.

Scuttling of the private trusteeship plan was revealed Sunday by Donald MacDonald, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Labor Congress.

Mr. MacDonald said there is no alternative to public trusteeship.

"We had been hopeful that a public trusteeship could have been avoided and reason would have prevailed," he told a reporter.

He blamed the leaders of the SIU in Canada and the United States for scuttling the private talks.

Mr. MacDonald said the CLC will co-operate with the government even though it opposes trusteeship in principle.

Union Leader Hal C. Banks, who would be removed from office under the legislation, told his cheering followers from the steps in front of the Parliament Buildings that he wants the seamen to impress on MPs their demands for justice.

The government had ordered Banks to end the "illegal" walk-off from ships.

"We had been hopeful that a public trusteeship could have been avoided and reason would have prevailed," he told a reporter.

Banks said he hadn't received Mr. MacEachen's telegram ordering the union to stop the walkoff.

Asked when the demonstrators would return to work, Banks told reporters: "I haven't the slightest idea." Waving his arm at the crowd, estimated by one RCMP constable at nearly 2,000, Banks added: "Ask them. They'll decide."

Banks shrugged and declined comment on Mr. Pearson's statement that the trusteeship would be proclaimed without delay.

The number of demonstrators was far below union expectations of 7,000 to 9,000.

Banks said he wasn't in Ottawa to see anyone except his union members.

for permission to see their MPs.

The seamen filled out the customary form which a person signs in seeking an interview with an MP. The parliamentary staff phoned the MPs offices to find out whether they would receive the seamen.

Many MPs were not in.

CARRY PLACARDS

Outside, some of the demonstrators carried roughly lettered white cardboard placards. Most of them carried insulting remarks about Claude Jodoin, president of the Canadian Labor Congress; William Dodge, a CLC vice-president, and William Smith, president of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees.

Small groups of SIU delegates began to enter the Parliament Buildings, where they asked the parliamentary staff

B.C. Riding Manned By Quebecers

OTTAWA (CP)—Harold Winch, New Democratic Party member for Vancouver East, gave this report today of his interview with the SIU delegation carrying a banner from his riding.

He said he waited about half-an-hour on the steps in front of the Parliament Buildings until he spotted the Vancouver East banner among the milling crowd on the parliamentary lawns.

"I then made my way straight through the throng and found a delegation of two men," he said.

"I asked the first, do you live in Vancouver East? He said no."

"I asked the second, do you live in Vancouver East? He didn't either."

Mr. Winch then asked whether they could speak English. He said he then learned they were French-speaking people from Quebec.

Bush Fires Raging In Laurentian Hills

JOLIETTE, Que. (UPI)—At least seven fires raged out of control in the Laurentian mountains near here today and a number of homes were threatened, provincial police reported.

An urgent call was sent out for volunteers to fight the fires, all of which were within a 25-mile radius of this town about 50 miles north of Montreal.

PROTECTED BY LAW

'Nothing to Fear' Minister Tells Seamen

OTTAWA (CP)—The new maritime union trusteeship will help—not harm—seamen and their unions, Labor Minister MacEachen said today.

"Members of the unions have nothing to fear from the trustees," he said in a statement issued as members of the Seafarers' International Union (Ind.) milled in front of the Parliament Building in a demonstration against the trusteeship measure.

The SIU is one of five unions that would come under control of the trusteeship which will come into effect as soon as the cabinet proclaims the law already passed by Parliament.

Mr. MacEachen's statement, addressed to "members of the maritime transportation unions," said:

"You have been told that the new trusteeship law will harm you, your jobs and your unions. This is a false statement. Unions often established their own trusteeships. This had been tried in the present situation, but proved impossible, the minister said.

MACEACHEN
... Issues statement

"Seamen are protected under the law from any high-handed action which interferes with their democratic rights either from within or from outside their unions."

The trustees were required to protect union funds and property from being misused, to recommend changes in the constitution and bylaws of unions to ensure democratic control by union membership, to establish advisory committees and bargaining committees of seamen, and to establish means whereby union members may manage their own affairs efficiently and democratically.

"Seamen will have every opportunity to be heard, and any just grievances will be considered. The unions will not lose their rights to bargain or to strike, under the legislation."

The trusteeship will "put an end to lawlessness and disregard for the rights of other Canadians," Mr. MacEachen said.

ROUND-A-BOUT

By DOUGLAS HILLSIDE

A handy short title for University of Victoria is as far away as ever, unless we keep calling it Vic College, or The Place.

Meanwhile, we notice few in their endeavors to arrive at a catchy name have plumbed historic depths. Chancellor Judge Joseph B. Clearthine—practically a founder—has been ignored.

What could be more appropriate than Clear-U?

Or failing that, Joe's College.

Or maybe we should forget the whole thing.

Alan Maclean, for 15 years proprietor of famed Painter's Lodge at Campbell River, is a new Victoria resident. Mr. Maclean sold out his interest in the lodge this year and moved to town last month. He's in sort of semi-retirement but taking engagements as a management consultant. It was appropriate that, this being National Newspaper Week, he mentioned that he started out in life as a Times carrier some 45 years ago.

You may recall the story about the holdup man who tried to make off with the night's receipts at the Imperial Inn some three weeks ago.

A fascinating aspect of the investigation has turned up.

One of the guests in the motel at the time was J. F. Gregory—now Victoria police chief.

A guest on a television interview program the other night was Howie Bateman, the Vancouver coffee house entrepreneur who partly backed last Thursday evening's Hootenanny here.

His reaction to Victoria hootenannies: "never again." About 900 people trickled into the Esquimalt Sports Centre for the event. Break-even point was 2,000.

Tribute to Mrs. W. W. McGill, Victoria director of the B.C. Save the Children Fund, was paid in Metropolitan United Church Sunday by Gerald Walkey.

"She's the greatest Christian witness I know," said Mr. Walkey in reference to Mrs. McGill's efforts for children at home and abroad—her Halloween campaign in aid of the Save the Children Fund and the Sunday school rallies she organizes every year in Beacon Hill Park.

In Victoria recently, 20-year-old British student Michael Lacey advertised in The Times for a hitch-hike across Canada. He received a number of offers and now writes from England to tell us how he got back:

"The man who drove the across Canada was going to visit a couple of friends in the penitentiary who are doing a stretch for breaking and entering. His licence was borrowed from a friend, as the police had taken his, and he was living with a married woman.

"Nevertheless, although he wasn't exactly a candidate for the ministry, he was quite a decent chap and we had some pleasant times . . .

From Toronto, Michael returned by charter plane to Birmingham, where he is now attending university.

After years of studying the works of Charles Dickens, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wakefield Maunsell, 1711 Newton, are going to live in Dickens' English haunts.

Mr. Maunsell, who was born at Edmonton, Alta., is president of the Victoria branch, Dickens Fellowship. Mrs. Maunsell, a native of Leicester, England, has headed the Victoria poetry group, Canadian Authors' Association, for 18 years.

"We plan to live near London, if possible in the county of Kent, which was the setting for so many Dickens novels," Mrs. Maunsell said.

Did two German sailors give up their attempt to meet Victoria girls after they met the charmers of Hawaii?

Earlier in the year loneliness on the high seas was unbearable and the sailors dropped a note overboard in a bottle asking for two young girls to write.

Just who they intended to reach is not known—the letter was in broken English and a Dutch coin was included for postage.

The bottle was retrieved off Clover Point by Mrs. C. W. Ward, 1476 Thurlow.

The letter was written six days before the boys were due to dock in Hawaii—they haven't been heard from since. Could be they aren't lonely any more.

BANKS IN REVIEW

Although his men began arriving for their demonstration at about 9 a.m., Banks himself did not put in an appearance until shortly before noon.

He arrived in his flashy white Cadillac convertible.

At first, he seemed confused about what procedure to follow in organizing the demonstration. His followers were simply milling about, to no apparent purpose.

BANNERS FLOWN

"Hey, you guys," he yelled to a group of seamen, "help some of these trucks with those signs."

The placards and banners were then broken out; they bore the names of federal constituencies, with the names of the elected MPs. Groups of men were to assemble beneath each of these placards, elect one representative, who would go into the parliament buildings and seek an interview with his designated MP.

Shortly after his arrival, Banks made his way to the top of the broad stairs below the Peace Tower.

Holding his hands up, palms out towards the crowd below him, Banks said:

"Let's not move any further this way. That's it, hold it right there. (Pause.)

"You look good. (Smile.) Real good."

A roar and three cheers for Banks went up.

AVOID VIOLENCE

Then, quiet once more falling over sundrenched Parliament Hill, Banks gave the men their instructions, warning them to co-operate with the RCMP and avoid violence.

The purpose of the visit, he declared, was to make MPs aware of the "injustice" the government was allegedly imposing on the seamen through the trusteeship.

Making another tour through the crowd, Banks was followed at close quarters by a group of newsmen.

Would Banks and his men be staying more than one day? "I like Ottawa," said Banks. "I might stick around a week."

Banks headed down Wellington Street, on which Parliament Hill faces. He was going to a spot a block away where naval prison.

a sandwich-filled truck was waiting to feed the men. On the way, a man on the other side of the iron fence of Parliament Hill shouted at Banks:

"You're a goddamn crook, Banks." Banks laughed, and without breaking stride, said: "I agree with you."

SAMPLED SANDWICH

Finding the sandwich truck, Banks sampled a sandwich (ham), declared it to be "good," and told the truck crew to be ready for the call to deliver the sandwiches to the hill. The RCMP had given permission for the feeding, he said.

When Banks returned to "the hill," he resumed his reviewing.

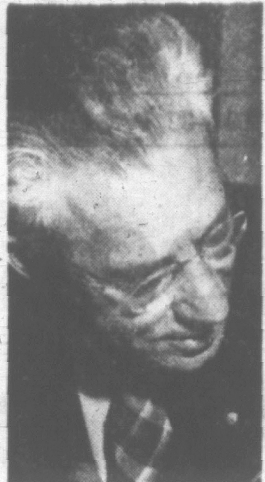

Only a handful of MPs showed themselves outside. Vancouver East MP Harold Winch (NDP) presented himself to two men carrying a banner with the name of his riding on it. When he spoke to them, he discovered they were from Montreal.

A Montreal Liberal MP, John Turner, parliamentary secretary to Northern Affairs Minister Arthur Laing, got himself involved in a howling contest with a number of SIU members on the steps below the Peace Tower.

LITTLE IMPRESSION
At one point in the 20-minute exchange, Turner was barely able to move, so great was the crush of hostile bodies against him. After failing to make much impression with the men by his arguments in favor of the trusteeship, Turner saw a demonstrator start punching a placard behind him, Turner finally gave up.

Meanwhile, reporters following Banks thought they might witness a significant development as Banks headed for the Parliament Buildings. He entered the Buildings, however, only to visit a washroom, and he displayed delight at the ire shown by newsmen.

Tidal Wave Alert Proves a Fizzle

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—For the second weekend in a row, an earthquake near Japan put the Hawaiian Islands and the California coast on a tidal wave alert.

And, for the second weekend in a row, the threatened tidal wave amounted to little more than a ripple in the Pacific.

The earthquake struck north of Japan Saturday night. Civil defence officials in Hawaii sounded the alert on all islands and ordered the evacuation of all beachfront areas.

The entire population of Hilo, a city of about 21,000 persons of the Island of Hawaii, was ordered to high ground and all bars and night clubs in Waikiki were forced to close down for the second Saturday night in a row.

Many ships berthed at ports in the islands, including the passenger liner President Wilson, sought the safety of the high seas.

But the tidal wave measured just one foot as it passed Midway Island and was even lower when recorded at Hawaii.

In California, state disaster headquarters in Sacramento sounded an alert for local civil defence agencies. A similar warning a week earlier had sent thousands of coastal residents inland.

Only a few hundred persons left their homes this time and there was no indication of whether the wave ever reached the California coast.

Selassie Deep in Border Conflict

MARRAKECH, Morocco (AP)—Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia delayed his departure from Morocco today to continue efforts to mediate the Moroccan-Algerian border conflict.

The emperor was expected to hold further talks with Moroccan officials and possibly to arrange a meeting between Algerian Foreign Minister Abdelaziz Bouteflika and Moroccan Foreign Minister Ahmed Balafout.

Haile Selassie went to Rabat Sunday after an official visit to King Hassan II in Marrakech, the country's winter capital. Bouteflika joined him in Rabat Sunday night and they had been scheduled to fly to Paris today and then to Algiers, Balafout also is in Rabat.

Cabinet ministers said the Moroccan government is ready to negotiate the bitter dispute but the Algerians must make the first move.

At United Nations headquarters in New York, emissaries from both governments told Secretary-General U Thant there was no chance of a cease-fire under present conditions. Each demanded that the other's force withdraw from the disputed border area. They said they had not decided whether to accept Thant's offer to mediate the conflict.

The Algerians have refused to discuss Moroccan demands for a large portion of the Sahara, which Morocco claims belongs to it historically and ethnically.

MASS AROUND BORDER

Troops were massed around a half-dozen frontier points after a series of clashes in which there have been several score victims. Algerian sources reported sporadic fighting in the Hassi Beida and Tinjoub area in the ill-defined frontier zone.

Neither country — each with about the same population of 11,000,000 to 12,000,000 — has enough men to wage a full-scale war along the 700-mile frontier.

Late Sunday, the attention of both countries centred on Figuig, an oasis in Morocco where the defined segment of the frontier ends. Troops were massed on both sides and the Moroccan cans ordered a blackout in the area.

Moroccan strategists believe the 35,000-man royal army, bolstered by 20,000 auxiliaries is the stronger force in the desert on the southern front. But they do not hide their concern over apparent Algerian superiority on the northern part of the frontier.

Algeria has a 60,000-man army equipped with Soviet and Red Chinese heavy weapons. The Moroccans have a superior air force of 13 Soviet MiGs and as many or more French jets plus other planes.

THE NEW 1964 ROVER MARK II SEDAN

Progressively developed during the four years since its introduction, the Rover 3-Litre Mark II Saloon now has one of the finest car specifications in the world, regardless of price. The engine develops 25% more brake-horse-power and the very high performance this provides is amply matched by the car's phenomenal braking and road-holding qualities. Detail changes—a lower line, new interior furnishing, a short floor-mounted gear lever, to name a few—all contribute to a high degree of driver appeal and an air of well-being and refinement by which Rovers are recognized the world over.

"OFTEN IMITATED BUT NEVER EQUALLED"

Archdeacon Appointed

Archdeacon A. E. Hendy has been appointed rector of St. Richard's Church at Gordon Head.

He replaces Rev. William Hills, who retired recently because of ill-health and is now at Qualicum.

The appointment came after members of the Diocesan Servers' Guild made a unanimous choice at their 14th annual conference, at Christ Church Cathedral during the weekend.

100 ATTEND

About 100 servers from Vancouver Island areas attended the conference.

They were told by Victoria MLA Waldo Skellings—himself father of five servers—that they should set their horizons high but base them all on the faith they had secured when they were young.

The new chaplain installed the following servers at the Sunday service in Christ Cathedral.

Jim Robertson, Christ Church, diocesan warden for the 14th tier; James Howell, Christ Church, secretary-treasurer; Barney Spaven, Christ Church, treasurer; Tom Beesley, Christ Church, and Len Howland, St. Luke's, executive members.

"You are also the people who tried to smash some of these unions by violence and intimidation," Mr. Douglas told him.

Mr. Heinekey challenged Mr. Douglas to produce any evidence of convictions against SIU members.

Man Arrested In Drug Theft

$10,000 Bail Set For Mainland Addict

A Vancouver drug addict was arrested early Sunday morning by city detectives in connection with the Oct. 10 narcotics robbery of McGill and Orme, 1103 Pandora.

Robert R. Smith, 31, in city police court this morning was charged with breaking and entering and theft.

He elected a judge and jury trial. Preliminary hearing was set for Monday, and bail was set at $10,000.

City detectives arrested the man after staking out a spot on Millstream Road.

Drugs were not on him when he was found, but a tracking dog helped detectives find a cache under a bush nearby.

An RCMP officer was with them when the drugs were found. RCMP have been working with city police on the case.

Det.-Ins. Charles Webb confirmed this morning that the drugs recovered are believed to be part of the haul a burglar took from a locked drawer in the drug store after breaking in through a window Oct. 10.

Smith originally came from Winnipeg. City prosecutor Peter Birkett, asking that substantial bail be set, told the court today that Smith is:

"Unemployed, has no fixed address, has a record, and is a drug user."

Mr. Birkett, who said the accused came here from Vancouver, told the court he believed the illicit value of the drugs stolen to be "considerable."

Last week, it was estimated that sufficient morphine was stolen to supply an addict with about 500 "fixes" — which would put the underworld market value at about $5,000.

In the dock this morning, Smith did not deny he was an addict.

The accused man is tall and dark, with aquiline features and a slim build.

He was visibly nervous in the dock, and had three packages of cigarettes protruding from a side pocket of his black zipper jacket.

Three Prices For Buyers Of Car Fuel

Victoria motorists had a choice of three prices for gasoline today.

Major oil companies offered regular gas this morning at 38.9 cents per gallon and premium at 43.9.

The exception was Shell Oil which was still selling at 39.9 and 44.9 cents.

The so-called off-brand stations which buy from various producing companies, were selling at 37.9 and 42.9 for premium.

Woodward's Mayfair station, which precipitated the price-cutting last week, was closed today.

But if the store holds to its announced aim of underselling the majors by 2 cents and the off-brands by 1 cent, it can be expected to drop to 36.9 and 41.9 Tuesday.

However, this could not be confirmed immediately. And the store was content Saturday to merely match its lowest competitors.

The gas war is on again also in the Cowichan Valley, and over the weekend Standard, Texaco, Imperial and Home Oil service stations lowered their gas prices.

Regular dropped from 41.9 to 39.9 cents, and super from 46.9 to 44.9 cents.

A BA service station manager said this morning that he expects his company will lower prices today. Shell station operators are also waiting to hear from their company.

FALL FATAL

City police took him to the Royal Jubilee Hospital, where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

Union, Yard Stalled On Naming Chairman

Arbitration hearings in the Yarrow's boilermakers' union dispute are being delayed by failure to agree on a chairman.

If there is continued disagreement, Labor Minister Leslie Peterson may have to name a chairman.

Named to represent the boilermakers is union secretary James McConachy. Burrard Dry Dock Ltd. personnel manager J. W. Thompson will represent Yarrow's Ltd.

Agreement to submit to arbitration followed a walkout. The dispute began Oct. 10 when 262 Yarrow's shipbuilders, members of the Brotherhood of Boilermakers, Iron Shipbuilders, Blacksmiths, Forgers and Helpers walked out.

They told company officials they were "ill" but union representatives later said the walkout was caused by a work jurisdiction dispute with the Shipwrights' Union.

Boilermakers had charged Yarrow's with disregarding jurisdiction of work recently taken on by shipwrights and traditionally claimed by boilermakers.

Provincial labor relations officer W. T. McLaughlin was credited with ending the walkout after union-management mediation.

The finding of the arbitration hearing will be binding.

MOONEY WRONG

'Don't Waver' On Square Says Wilson

Mayor R. B. Wilson today vigorously defended the centennial Victoria Square program.

Just returned from his vacation, he endorsed council's opposition to Ald. M. H. Mooney's surprise demand last week for a re-appraisal of the civic precinct before contracts are let for construction.

"The project is just as good now as when it was conceived and endorsed by the ratepayers," said the mayor.

"It is making good progress and I don't think we should waver."

NEW BUILDING

Ald. Mooney had said that the city should study possibility of replacing the Pandora City Hall with an entirely new building or making the Bastion Square Courthouse into a permanent city hall just to be sure that it was not making a mistake with the civic precinct.

But Mayor Wilson countered that the courthouse, while making an admirable temporary City Hall, was not acceptable as a permanent civic home.

He also opposed tearing down the Pandora City Hall instead of renovating its interior.

"If you tear down all the historic buildings Victoria would become just another chrome and glass city."

SOME GEMS

"We have some architectural gems here that other cities would give their eye teeth to have and we should endeavor to maintain our natural individuality," said the mayor.

He also emphasized that the civic precinct was not just a project to improve the civic accommodation but also was a major rehabilitation program for the downtown area.

'GOOD HOME' ASSURED FOUNTAIN

A special study likely will be made at City Hall to decide the fate of the water fountain removed from the Roundabout.

Mayor R. B. Wilson said today he would like to be sure that the best location is chosen before the fountain, commissioned as a commemoration of the city's 75th anniversary in 1937, is put up again.

So far there are two factions on the question. Largest group favors erection of the fountain in Bastion Square when it is landscaped — a project expected to be launched next spring.

Another group prefers to see the fountain returned to the Douglas-Hillside intersection on the small triangular divider that has replaced the circular lawn.

"If you tear down all the historic buildings Victoria would become just another chrome and glass city."

GAME ACT CHALLENGED

Indians Appeal In Hunting Case

A notice of appeal was filed in County Court at Nanaimo today against a Nanaimo magistrate's ruling that Indians have no right to hunt out-of-season on unoccupied lands.

The appeal was filed by Thomas Berger, Vancouver lawyer and a former NDP MP for Vancouver-Burrard, acting on behalf of Indian bands on the east coast of Vancouver Island.

The appeal follows a judgment by Magistrate Lionel Bevoir-Potts convicting Clifford White and David Boy, Nanaimo Reserve, of being in possession of six deer carcasses. They were each fined $100.

The magistrate dismissed defence evidence that a treaty signed by Governor James Douglas in 1852 gave Indians unlimited hunting rights.

The magistrate ruled the treaty was not pertinent to the case.

It is on this issue that an appeal has been launched. The notice of appeal states that under a series of treaties, Indians between Sooke and Fort Rupert surrendered their tribal lands on the understanding they would retain all their rights to hunt on unoccupied lands.

The treaties were signed by Governor Douglas, acting as an agent for the Hudson's Bay Co.

The notice adds that if the treaties are found to be invalid, then the Indian chiefs and their people remain rightful owners of all lands on Vancouver Island between Sooke and Fort Rupert.

This would mean, the notice adds, that the Game Act can't take away the rights of Indians to hunt on unoccupied lands or to possess deer carcasses out-of-season.

$31,375 DAILY NEEDED BY DRIVE

The United Appeal fund is growing, but so is the need for greater returns each day as the drive for $400,000 enters its final eight days.

The fund now stands at $149,035, just 37.2 per cent of the target. And that means that the Appeal now needs $31,375 every day till Oct. 31.

Appeal officials have stressed that they will take money by mail, by phone, by payroll deduction, by contribution at the Appeal booth on Douglas at Yates.

It may be taken to Appeal headquarters at 1951 Cook Street next to the City Welfare Dept., or if it's a large amount — have it collected at the donor's home or office.

Appeal phone number is EV 5-6708.

Stowaway Given Heave-Ho

A youth who came half-way around the world to Victoria has been returned home without a look at the city.

The unidentified 18-year-old was a stowaway found aboard the motorship Simandou which loaded lumber here last week.

Immigration officials were able to give few details. They said the boy's future was left in the hands of the ship's Vancouver agents.

CASABLANCA

They understood he was now on his way back to Casablanca where he is believed to have stowed away while the vessel was loading phosphates.

Since then, Simandou had called at Shanghai, Singapore, Moji (Japan) and Vancouver.

"We don't see stowaways here very often. When we do, their disposition is handled by the ship's agents," an immigration official said.

He added, most illegal entries in this port are crewmen who "jump ship." In 1961 Canada deported 252 persons who entered Canada by false representation or stealth. Last year's figures are not yet available.

Taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital were Mrs. Morgan, 50, Glen, 94; Mrs. Carol, 51; Mrs. Jillian, 24; and Miss Merle Marshall, 1280 Newport, a passenger with Robbie.

Police said he was in a collision Sunday afternoon about 3:30 at Bay and Catherine with a car driven by Mrs. Darlene Morgan, 1546 Oakcrest.

Canora Escapes Damage in Harbor; Line Crews Kept on Hop Up-Island

Blustery fall weather began toying with Victoria shipping, communications and power supply in the last 24 hours.

Gusting winds blew a 2,400-ton vessel ashore briefly and knocked out several electrical and telephone lines.

Most serious mishap occurred at 8:50 this morning when the CNR railway car ferry Canora grounded, hard against the Victoria Machinery Depot's Bay Street plant.

Canora was docking with a full load of cars at her Point Ellice berth when a line parted.

Thirty-mile wide, gusting to 40 carried her broadsides across the harbor. She fitted nicely between the bridge and the Fisheries Department vessel Hunter Point which was alongside at VMD. Neither was endangered.

Captain Douglas Atlin radioed immediately for tugs. Island Tug and Barge sent Island Planet, Island Trooper and Warren Tugs sent MT3.

They got lines aboard quickly and berthed Canora again snugly. Captain Atlin said he thought there was no damage to his vessel but he planned an inspection of her bottom plates.

Vandals Wreak $3,000 Damage On Forest Lab

Vandals hit the government forestry laboratory building under construction on Burnside Road Sunday and did about $3,000 worth of damage.

A fire had been started in a rubbish heap and was reported at 5:30 p.m. by Bob Marshall, an employee of the building, Burns and Dutton Ltd.

Saanich fire department extinguished the flames, and police found that tarpaulins had been ripped off three large boiler units and the gauges had been smashed.

Use of a temporary traffic signal at Douglas and Hillside and barricading of Government Street will be delayed until Tuesday or Wednesday, city traffic committee was informed today.

It had been previously thought temporary arrangements would go into operation this morning. The steps are intended to fill in while repaving of the intersection and readjusting of complex electronically-controlled traffic signals are completed.

A motorist with three previous convictions for driving while under suspension today was sentenced in city police court to 14 months in Oakalla on a fourth offence.

Anderson Jack had pleaded guilty to the charge. His licence was suspended in 1960, and three times since then he had been convicted for driving without it.

Jack has already spent 42 days in jail on previous convictions for driving without a licence.

"It is impossible to imagine more contemptuous conduct of the law and of the court," said Magistrate William Ostler.

Man Arrested In Drug Theft

$10,000 Bail Set For Mainland Addict

A Vancouver drug addict was arrested early Sunday morning by city detectives in connection with the Oct. 10 narcotics robbery of McGill and Orme, 1103 Pandora.

Robert R. Smith, 31, in city police court this morning was charged with breaking and entering and theft.

He elected a judge and jury trial. Preliminary hearing was set for Monday, and bail was set at $10,000.

City detectives arrested the man after staking out a spot on Millstream Road.

Drugs were not on him when he was found, but a tracking dog helped detectives find a cache under a bush nearby.

An RCMP officer was with them when the drugs were found. RCMP have been working with city police on the case.

Det. Ins. Charles Webb confirmed this morning that the drugs recovered are believed to be part of the haul a burglar took from a locked drawer in the drug store after breaking in through a window Oct. 10.

Smith originally came from Winnipeg.

City prosecutor Peter Birkett, asking that substantial bail be set, told the court today that Smith is:

"Unemployed, has no fixed address, has a record, and is a drug user."

Mr. Birkett, who said the

Three Prices For Buyers Of Car Fuel

Victoria motorists had a choice of three prices for gasoline today.

Major oil companies offered regular gas this morning at 38.9 cents per gallon and premium at 43.9.

The exception was Shell Oil which was still selling at 39.9 and 44.9 cents.

The so-called off-brand stations which buy from various producing companies, were selling at 37.9 and 42.9 for premium.

Woodward's Mayfair station, which precipitated the price-cutting last week, was closed today.

But if the store holds to its announced aim of underselling the majors by 2 cents and the off-brands by 1 cent, it can be expected to drop to 36.9 and 41.9 Tuesday.

However, this could not be confirmed immediately. And the store was content Saturday to merely match its lowest competitors.

The gas war is on again also in the Cowichan Valley, and over the weekend Standard, Texaco, Imperial and Home Oil service stations lowered their gas prices.

Regular dropped from 41.9 to 39.9 cents, and super from 46.9 to 44.9 cents.

A B.A. service station manager said this morning that he expects his company will lower prices today. Shell station operators are also waiting to hear from their company.

FALL FATAL

William Clark, 74, 1136 Empress, died Friday when he fell down two flights of stairs at the New England Hotel.

City police took him to the Royal Jubilee Hospital, where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

JUVENILE STILL HELD IN MURDER

A juvenile picked up four weeks ago in connection with the Aug. 29 slaying of 17-year-old George Down is still being held in the city's juvenile detention home.

No charge has been laid against him except that of escaping from Brannen Lake School.

The 16-year-old has appeared twice in juvenile court on that charge, and is expected to enter a plea Friday.

He is being represented by a Petitioner lawyer.

City police had no comment to make today on the murder case, except that the investigation is continuing.

They are allowed to hold the youth without charge because he is a fugitive.

Normally, a suspect must appear in court within a day of being arrested.

In this case, the youth has a year left to serve for auto theft, the offence for which he was sent to Brannen Lake and "he won't be going anywhere for a long time," a court source said today.

OWN ALL LANDS

The notice adds that if the treaties are found to be invalid, then the Indian chiefs and their people remain rightful owners of all lands on Vancouver Island between Sooke and Port Rupert.

This would mean, the notice adds, that the Game Act can't take away the rights of Indians to hunt on unoccupied lands or to possess deer carcasses out-of-season.

Union, Yard Stalled On Naming Chairman

Arbitration hearings in the Yarrow's boiler-makers' union dispute are being delayed by failure to agree on a chairman.

If there is continued disagreement, Labor Minister Leslie Peterson may have to name a chairman.

Named to represent the boiler-makers is union secretary James McConachy. Burrard Dry Dock Ltd. personnel manager J. W. Thompson will represent Yarrow's Ltd.

262 WALKED OUT

Agreement to submit to arbitration followed a walkout. The dispute began Oct. 10 when 262 Yarrow's shipbuilders, members of the Brotherhood of Boilermakers, Iron Shipbuilders, Blacksmiths, Forgers and Helpers walked out.

They told company officials they were "ill" but union representatives later said the walkout was caused by a work jurisdiction dispute with the Shipwrights' Union.

Boilermakers had charged Yarrow's with disregarding jurisdiction of work recently taken on by shipwrights and traditionally claimed by boilermakers.

Provincial labor relations officer W. T. McLaughlin was credited with ending the walkout after union-management mediation.

The finding of the arbitration hearing will be binding.

MOONEY WRONG

'Don't Waver' On Square Says Wilson

Mayor R. B. Wilson today vigorously defended the centennial Victoria Square program.

Just returned from his vacation, he endorsed council's opposition to Ald. M. H. Mooney's surprise demand last week for a re-appraisal of the civic precinct before contracts are let for construction.

"The project is just as good now as when it was conceived and endorsed by the ratepayers," said the mayor.

"It is making good progress and I don't think we should waver."

NEW BUILDING

Ald. Mooney had said that the city should study possibility of replacing the Pandora City Hall with an entirely new building or making the Bastion Square Courthouse into a permanent city hall just to be sure that it was not making a mistake with the civic precinct.

But Mayor Wilson countered that the courthouse, while making an admirable temporary City Hall, was not acceptable as a permanent civic home. He also opposed tearing down the Pandora City Hall instead of renovating its interior.

"If you tear down all the historic buildings Victoria would become just another chrome and glass city."

'SOME GEMS'

"We have some architectural gems here that other cities would give their eye teeth to have and we should endeavor to maintain our natural individuality," said the mayor.

He also emphasized that the civic precinct was not just a project to improve the civic accommodation but also was a major rehabilitation program for the downtown area.

'GOOD HOME' ASSURED FOUNTAIN

A special study likely will be made at City Hall to decide the fate of the water fountain removed from the Roundabout.

Mayor R. B. Wilson said today he would like to be sure that the best location is chosen before the fountain, commissioned as a commemoration of the city's 75th anniversary in 1937, is put up again.

So far there are two factions on the question.

Largest group favors erection of the fountain in Bastion Square when it is landscaped—a project expected to be launched next spring.

Another group prefers to see the fountain returned to the Douglas-Hillside intersection on the small triangular divider that has replaced the circular lawn.

So far only the Bastion Square location has drawn comment and it was favorable.

occurred as a line parted when Canora was nosing into her jetty. A radio call brought four tugs on the double and Canora was brought off almost as fast as she scraped bottom. Officials did not expect to find any damage. (Times photo).

Ship Grounded By Gusty Wind

Canora Escapes Damage in Harbor; Line Crews Kept on Hop Up-Island

Blustery fall weather began toying with Victoria shipping, communications and power supply in the last 24 hours.

Gusting winds blew a 2,400-ton vessel ashore briefly and knocked out several electrical and telephone lines.

Most serious mishap occurred at 8:50 this morning when the CNR railway car ferry Canora grounded, hard against the Victoria Machinery Depot's Bay Street plant.

Canora was docking with a full load of cars at her Point Ellice berth when a line parted.

Thirty-mile wide, gusting to 40 carried her broadsides across the harbor. She fitted nicely between the bridge and the Fisheries Department vessel Hunter Point which was alongside at VMD. Neither was endangered.

Captain Douglas Atlin radioed immediately for tugs. Island Tug and Barge sent Island Planet, Island Trooper and Warren Tugs sent MT3.

They got lines aboard quickly and berthed Canora again snugly. Captain Atlin said he thought there was no damage to his vessel but he planned an inspection of her bottom plates.

The frolicsome southeaster that caused all the trouble eased off to allow a smooth rescue operation according to tug company officials.

BULKY LARGE

CNR transport officer G. A. Hannon said in most cases the Canora would lie off and not attempt a landing in stiff winds because she bulks so largely above the waterline.

He said the landing was further impeded by the presence of a log boom projecting into the harbor south of the berth on the Victoria West side.

Meanwhile, these other reports of fall weather damage came in:

B.C. Hydro said a tree fell across a primary (heavy load) power line at East Sooke today at about 8 a.m., cutting power to many rural residents. Line crews were still out at mid-morning.

There were also spotty power interruptions in Ardmore, Sidney and Shawnigan areas.

A primary snapped Sunday night on Hampshire Road, blacking out a large portion of Oak Bay between 8:36 p.m. and 9:45 p.m.

B.C. Telephone Company said weather caused a few problems overnight, but mostly up-Island.

Impaired Charge Follows Crash Injuring Five

A 27-year-old man was charged in city police court today with impaired driving after he was involved in an accident Sunday that sent five people to hospital.

John Robble, 1143 Colville, asked for an adjournment until Wednesday.

Police said he was in a collision Sunday afternoon about 3:30 at Bay and Catherine with a car driven by Mrs. Darlene Morgan, 1546 Oakcrest.

Taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital were Mrs. Morgan, son Glen, 9½ months, Carol, 5½ years, Jillian, 2½ years; and Miss Merle Marshall, 1280 Newport, a passenger with Robble.

Stowaway Given Heave-Ho

A youth who came half-way around the world to Victoria has been returned home without a look at the city.

The unidentified 18-year-old was a stowaway found aboard the motorship Simandou which loaded lumber here last week.

Immigration officials were able to give few details. They said the boy's future was left in the hands of the ship's Vancouver agents.

CASABLANCA

They understood he was now on his way back to Casablanca where he is believed to have stowed away while the vessel was loading phosphates.

Since then, Simandou had called at Shanghai, Singapore, Moji (Japan) and Vancouver.

"We don't see stowaways here very often. When we do, their disposition is handled by the ship's agents," an immigration official said.

He added, most illegal entries in this port are crewmen who "jump ship." In 1961 Canada deported 252 persons who entered Canada by false representation or stealth. Last year's figures are not yet available.

Resigns Post

OTTAWA (CP)—Commissioner C. W. Harvison of the RCMP is resigning Oct. 31, Prime Minister Pearson announced today. He will be succeeded by Deputy Commissioner George B. McLellan.

Mr. Pearson said the government has accepted the commissioner's resignation "with regret."

Commissioner Harvison, 61, had originally asked to be retired in April, but Mr. Pearson said he agreed to serve a "further period" at the government's request.

The commissioner is the only serving officer in the force who was a member of the old Royal North West Mounted Police. He joined that force in 1919.

Mr. Pearson said the retiring commissioner has good reason to be proud of his "distinguished contribution" to the RCMP and law enforcement in Canada. It was under his guidance that the RCMP had become one of the most distinguished police forces in the world.

EXCEPT IF YOU'RE INDIAN

No Discrimination Here!

CALGARY (CP)—A Calgary family, which has had its lawn littered with garbage twice since moving here from Vancouver, found a vulgar word painted in bright red on the side of their home.

James Garner, former University of British Columbia instructor, said Saturday the four-letter word was noticed first by his six-year-old son. The boy didn't know what it meant.

Mr. Garner, a part Indian, and his Indian wife, moved to Calgary's Mount Royal district on July after being hired by the Glenbow Foundation, which gathers historical data of the early west.

Mr. Garner said about two weeks ago he found garbage on his front lawn and Thursday both the side lawn and the front lawn were covered with more rubbish. He said he thought it was thrown from a car.

Mrs. Garner said they were upset about the incident, but felt that it couldn't be discrimination. The house has been placed under special surveillance by police.

The Garners said they had the same trouble in Vancouver, where windows in their house were repeatedly smashed.

Hurricane Ginny
Rakes Carolina

CAPE HATTERAS, N.C. (UPI)—Hurricane Ginny inched away from the North Carolina coast today but its 80-mile-an-hour winds and heavy seas pounded a navy destroyer escort adrift with 10 men aboard.

A navy Hurricane Hunter plane located the 306-foot USS Fogg, en route to a Texas mothball fleet, pitching in the rough weather about 150 miles east of Cape Fear, N.C.

This was about 50 or 60 miles southwest of Ginny's centre.

Winds of about 80 miles an hour extended outward 50 miles in all directions from the centre and gale-force winds sent heavy surf crashing into the North Carolina coast. Gale winds were felt as far as 250 miles to the north and east.

Ginny was the seventh tropical storm of the season and the first to pose a direct threat to the eastern coast of United States.

It was reported moving slowly towards the northeast at about five miles per hour. Hurricane Ginny is expected to move northeastward very slowly during the next 24 hours and the intensity will remain about the same, the weather bureau said.

The navy announced that the 1,400-ton Fogg appeared to be riding out the storm. The coast guard Chilula was expected to reach the decommissioned vessel and its skeleton crew by mid-afternoon and attempt to take her under tow again was due when the weather subsided.

The coast guard had reported seas were running 40 to 50 feet in the vicinity of the drift-destroyer-escort.

OTTAWA (CP)—Harold Winch, New Democratic Party member for Vancouver East, gave this report today of his interview with the SIU delegation carrying a banner from his riding.

He said he waited about half-an-hour on the steps in front of the Parliament Buildings until he spotted the Vancouver East banner among the milling crowd on the parliamentary grounds.

"I then made my way straight through the throng and found a delegation of two men," he said.

"I asked the first, do you live in Vancouver East? He said no. I asked the second, do you live in Vancouver East? He didn't either."

Mr. Winch then asked whether they could speak English. He said he then learned they were French-speaking people from Quebec.

PROTECTED

Seamen Told:
'Nothing
To Fear'

OTTAWA (CP)—The new maritime union trusteeship will help—not harm—seamen and their unions, Labor Minister Maceachen said today.

"Members of the unions have nothing to fear from the trustees," he said in a statement issued as members of the Seafarers' International Union (Ind.) milled in front of the Parliament Building in a demonstration against the trusteeship measure.

The SIU is one of five unions that would come under control of the trusteeship which will come into effect as soon as the cabinet proclaims the law already passed by Parliament.

Mr. Maceachen's statement, addressed to "members of the maritime transportation unions," said:

"You have been told that the new trusteeship law will harm you, your jobs and your unions. This is a false statement. Unions often established their own trusteeships. This had been tried in the present situation, but proved impossible, the minister said.

"Seamen are protected under the law from any high-handed action which interferes with their democratic rights either from within or from outside their unions."

The trustees were required to protect union funds and property from being misused, to recommend changes in the constitution and bylaws of unions to ensure democratic control by union membership, to establish advisory committees and bargaining committees of seamen, and to establish means whereby union members may manage their own affairs efficiently and democratically.

OTTAWA (CP)—It wasn't all cheers and applause for Hal C. Banks as he met members of his Seafarers' International Union of Canada on Parliament Hill.

As he left The Hill briefly, one Ottawa citizen—separated from the SIU president by an iron fence—called out: "Banks, you're a . . . damned crook."

Mr. Banks chuckled and shot back: "I agree with you."

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Burly Hal Banks, the man denounced by a royal commission as a thug and leader of a hoodlum empire, today marched freely about Parliament Hill like a general reviewing his troops.

And he had between 2,000 and 3,000 "troops" behind him—Seafarers' International Union members who had walked off their jobs, most of them from the Lakes and St. Lawrence Seaway, to protest the impending trusteeship to be imposed on their union by the government.

Everywhere Banks went—over the expansive lawns or up the stairs below the Peace Tower—the crowd gave way like wheat in the wind. Hal was apparently king.

"There's big Hal," cried eager placard-carriers. "We want Hal," they chanted as the smiling Banks, hat set back on his head, strode along, looking like an imitation of Broderick Crawford seeking a culprit.

Every once in a while, "Hal" would stop and shake hands with a seaman or a group of seamen, exchanging small talk and smiles.

"What a great guy," some of these SIU members would remark at his departing back, as he moved on to review his men in other areas.

OTTAWA (CP)—The march on Parliament by the Seafarers' International Union of Canada was ended at mid-afternoon today by order of Hal C. Banks.

But the instructions by the burly SIU president indicated that the walkout by union members—termed an illegal strike by the government—will continue for Tuesday at least.

Speaking to SIU lieutenants in front of the Parliament Buildings about three hours after the demonstration began, Mr. Banks said the union members were not to return to their ships.

"Report to the closest hall. Then we'll hold a meeting and decide what we're going to do."

Mr. Banks told a reporter that the meetings in the SIU's union halls would be held tonight and Tuesday.

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson said today the government's trusteeship legislation over five maritime unions will be proclaimed without delay.

He made the statement to reporters in a corridor of the East Block of the Parliament Buildings while outside on Parliament Hill hundreds of members of the Seafarers' International Union (Ind.), carrying banners, protested in orderly fashion against the legislation.

Scuttling of the private trusteeship plan was revealed Sunday by Donald MacDonald, secretary treasurer of the Canadian Labor Congress.

Mr. MacDonald said there is no alternative to public trusteeship. "We had been hopeful that a public trusteeship could have been avoided and reason would have prevailed," he told a reporter.

He blamed the leaders of the SIU in Canada and the United States for scuttling the private talks.

Mr. MacDonald said the CLC will co-operate with the government even though it opposes trusteeship in principle.

Union Leader Hal C. Banks, who would be removed from office under the legislation, told his cheering followers from the steps in front of the Parliament Buildings that he wants the seamen to impress on MPs their demands for justice.

The government had ordered Banks to end the "illegal" walk-off from ships.

Banks shrugged and declined comment on Mr. Pearson's statement that the trusteeship would be proclaimed without delay.

The number of demonstrators was far below union expectations of 7,000 to 9,000.

Banks said he wasn't in Ottawa to see anyone except his union members.

'Didn't Figure on Negative Basis'

Asked by reporters what he would do if the march on Ottawa brought no results, Mr. Banks said: "We didn't figure this on a negative basis."

The main thing is to make the members of Parliament aware of the fact that a vast majority of sailors are very unhappy about this injustice. These members of Parliament will know how these people feel about it, after this."

Asked when he would be sending the men back to their ships, he said: "I don't send them anywhere." He said neither he nor the union called them to Ottawa.

Small groups of SIU delegates began to enter the Parliament Buildings, where they asked the parliamentary staff for permission to see their MPs.

The seamen filled out the customary form which is a person signs in seeking an interview with an MP. The parliamentary staff phoned the MPs' offices to find out whether they would receive the seamen.

Many MPs were not in. Outside, some of the demonstrators carried roughly lettered white cardboard placards. Most of them carried insulting remarks about Claude Jodoin, president of the Canadian Labor Congress; William
